

U. S. MINES STILL ROVE STORMY SEA

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 14.—Storms in the North Sea have turned up floating mines, endangering ships, the Danish press declares today. The mines were originally laid by the American navy between the Orkneys and the coast of Norway during the war. It is declared the Americans laid about 70,000 mines in these waters, but the post-war mine sweeping by the American fleets failed to get them all.

Scandinavian experts are of the opinion that there are still 20,000 mines in the North Sea, many of which are not anchored, and heavy gales drive them to the Norwegian and Danish coasts. The Scandinavian authorities have issued a warning to fishing fleets not to trawl near the mine fields.

The director of the Danish navy chart office, Capt. Sieler, declares the mine danger in the North Sea will continue probably ten years.

Chest Campaign Boosted By W. E. Roberts

Everyone who loves his fellowmen ought to be heartily in favor of the Community Chest Campaign, for it is prompted by the pure spirit of service. There is no taint of selfishness, nor trace of commercialism anywhere associated with the plan. On the contrary it is humanitarian to the core.

This campaign ought to make its appeal to the entire community, for all of the participating organizations have within them a community-wide claim, based upon the proven value of their unselfish and constructive work. I trust they will get the recognition and support they deserve.

Without doubt Santa Ana will again prove its right to be called a forward-looking, forward-moving city, by its wholehearted response to this humanitarian call.
William Everett Roberts.

S. A. KIWANIAN SUCCESSOR AS LT.-GOVERNOR

Santa Ana and Orange county delegates to the fourth annual convention of the California-Nevada Kiwanis district were home today with reports that the convention program was replete with interest. The Santa Ana club was honored by election of Col. M. B. Wellington, past president, lieutenant-governor for the ninth district, embracing clubs at Santa Ana, Anaheim, Fullerton, La Habra, Whittier and Downey. Wellington follows Dale King, of Fullerton, as lieutenant-governor of this district.

Growth of the clubs and membership was recognized by an increase in the number of zones, the number being increased from seven to eleven, the state of Nevada being placed in one zone.

Abe Leach, of Oakland, was elected district governor, succeeding Heber Winder, who held the position for one year. Leach had no opposition.

Among the most important reports submitted by committees and officers was that of the district public affairs committee, headed by former Governor Dr. George Pardee, of Oakland. The opinion of the committee was that the greatest menace facing California today is the rapid destruction of the watersheds. A resolution requesting the state legislature and the governor to give particular attention to this problem was unanimously passed.

Among the special speakers were Dr. Burton K. Myers of the University of Indiana, special representative of Kiwanis International; Francis Cuttle, Riverside, president of the water conservation association; Federal Judge Bledsoe, of Los Angeles; Franklin Kean, Oakland and Lieutenant Allison Hayes, of the Mare Island navy yard.

Arrangements have been completed for Jules Brazil, comedian, to appear in Santa Ana on Wednesday evening, November 26, with a special program of entertainment.

ELECTED

COL. M. B. WELLINGTON

Past president of local Kiwanis Club becomes lieutenant-governor of ninth district.

KATELLA BAZAAR IS BIG SUCCESS

KATELLA, Nov. 17.—The Katella Fall Festival and Bazaar was a huge success, greatly due to the untiring efforts of the president, Mrs. F. L. Benson, and Vice President Mrs. Simon Tousean, the latter acting as general manager of the affair. Mrs. Tousean gave a handsome prize for the most artistically decorated booth, the prize being two pair of lovely "book ends," her own art work. The fortunate winners were Mrs. Everett Hughes and Mrs. J. B. Eaton, who had charge of and built the "punch booth," the construction of which was a canopy of palm branches festooned with autumn leaves and yellow dates. The ladies wore costumes elaborately trimmed in autumn leaves of bright colors, carrying out the autumnal scheme. In the center of the booth was a huge "punch bowl." The judges were the corps of teachers, including Principal R. B. Armstrong and wife, Mrs. Maude Cramer, Miss Mildred Everett, Mrs. Glee Neumann.

Katella has always been noted for doing things right, and the program and decorations, and all the booths, which numbered eight, were most elaborately decorated and worthy of special mention. The general decorations followed out autumnal lines, using marigolds, pumpkins and corn stalks, in many tasteful ways. The proceeds were approximately $75 for the evening.

The program was as follows: Scotch melodies by Billy Robertson of Fullerton, accompanied by Miss Helen Wishard, also of Fullerton.

Roland Dye, talk on Scout work, with a move to the formation of a Scout troop in Katella. "Arkansas Travelers," a freak sturt, Mageline Tousean and Mildred Sabutette.

Piano number, Mrs. Elsworth. "Spring Song," A. U. H. S. Girls' Glee club, accompanied by Katherine Carner.

Reading, "Eva Wilburn's" moshrdl Reading, Eva Wilburn, "Young Fellow My Lad" by Edgar Guest. Historical pictures by Prof. Clayton of Santa Ana.

In charge of the booths were Mrs. E. J. Reeves and Mrs. J. E. Williams, Mrs. Roy J. Williams and Mrs. W. C. Mauerham, Mrs. C. J. Gregg, Mrs. Ray Howell and Mrs. Fred Edwards, Mrs. J. Swindler and John Blair, Mrs. F. L. Benson and Mrs. Luther, Mrs. H. W. Skinner.

GETS $50,000 IN ALIENATION SUIT

CHICAGO, Nov. 15.—The advice that Abraham Klapman gave his brother, Philip, about how to get rid of his wife was the bunk. "It is better that it should cost you a couple of hundred dollars to be rid of her than that you should live with her," Abraham wrote his brother.

Philip accepted the advice, but instead of $200 it cost him $50,000.

Judge Hugo Pam, in superior court awarded Mrs. Fannie Klapman, the wife, $50,000 after she had brought suit against the Klapman family for alienating her husband's affections. And Judge Pam indicated the wife could have a divorce for the asking.

Fannie came to America from Poland three years ago. She wasn't "Americanized" and, according to her complaint, the Klapman family didn't consider her the social equal of Philip, and induced him to cast her aside.

The WELL-DRESSED MAN

By BEAUNASH

Correct Clothes To Meet The Obligation Of Every Occasion

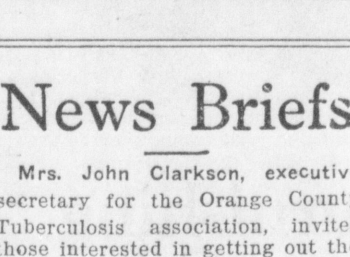

IS WHITE RIGHT?
Simplicity underlies all intelligent effort. We rack our wits to devise the most complicated way to do a thing, yet want it. Mr. Dooley who declared, with childlike candor, that we would all be better off if the doctors opened more windows and fewer patients? What, indeed, could be simpler? Similarly, when a hue-and-cry was raised in London that men's Tuxedo dress had become too stodgy and stereotyped, somebody introduced the white waistcoat, the simplest way to brighten up a dark object. Please don't misunderstand. The white waistcoat has not shouldered aside the black waistcoat, which is as correct as ever and, probably, always will be. You may, however, wear white if you prefer it to black, as some of us do, for no other reason than that it is more cheerful and that the Prince of Wales and his set have sponsored it. However, while your Tuxedo waistcoat may be white, your tie remains black. This rule is unbending.

Just how the white waistcoat and its smart accessories look is shown here. The waistcoat is crisp white linen, cotton or pique having graduated U-shaped lapels; 4 buttons closely grouped, and blunt button corners. Observe the waist in-curve over the hips and the deeply cut away soles (armholes). The shirt may have the plain or the pleated bosom, well starched. One or two studs are proper. The collar is the bold-tab wing and the black tie, worn over or under the tabs, is the batwing or butterfly effect having a snug knot and fan-shaped ends.

The white Tuxedo waistcoat is a metropolitan fashion, rather than a general one. You do not have to adopt it, if you do not fancy it or if you think that it renders you overly conspicuous. It is also procurable in the short, double-breasted effect with a squared-off front. Always wear the single-breasted waistcoat under the double-breasted Tuxedo jacket. With the single-breasted jacket either the single or the double-breasted waistcoat is allowable. As concerns the contour of the lapels, they may be U-shaped, V-shaped or oval-shaped at the whiff of the wearer. Like all coats, the Tuxedo jacket looks smarter if it is worn buttoned.

The Cheerful Cherub

I'll try to take the blows of fate
With robust strength and glee,
And simply laugh and say, "All right—
This time the joke's on me."

Attempting to avoid a collision with another automobile at First and Bristol streets Sunday afternoon, D. R. Heaps of 6130 Central avenue, Los Angeles, turned his car so sharply that it overturned, injuring himself, his wife and three-year-old daughter and Mr. and Mrs. H. Hansen, neighbors, all of whom were rushed to the Santa Ana Valley hospital for treatment. The child was the most seriously injured. Her back was badly wrenched. Mrs. Hansen's right hip was severely hurt. Mrs. Heaps sprained her right ankle and sustained minor bruises. Both men were cut about the head and hands by flying glass. The car which Heaps succeeded in avoiding was said to have been driven by F. Vasquez of 310 South Flower street.

"Pay me $120 cash and I'll use my influence to secure the release from jail of a prisoner." This statement, credited to F. R. Delsi, 24, a local truck driver, today had landed the alleged "influential fixer" himself in the Orange county jail. C. N. Mozley, chief deputy district attorney, explained that charges had been preferred against Delsi by a Mexican woman whose husband now is confined in the local jail. The woman was said to have paid the $120, and then reported the incident after she was convinced she had been swindled.

Twelve-year-old Pat Weely of 1415 West Eighth street had a narrow escape from serious injury Saturday night when the bicycle on which he was riding was struck by the automobile driven by C. F. Campbell of 1009 North Parton street. The accident occurred at Second and Sycamore streets. Young Weely was thrown from his wheel, which was demolished.

WHAT DOES SANTA ANA NEED?

The following suggestions have been made by members of the Santa Ana Chamber of Commerce in answer to the question: "What do you consider the most important thing the Chamber of Commerce should undertake for the future development of Santa Ana and Orange county?" The names of the authors of these answers are on file in the Register office.

Disseminate reliable information regarding our resources—information that will not result in a later unfavorable reaction. Put us on the map as "we are," not as we would like to have prospective residents believe.

Co-operate with other agencies in the development of the harbor,
if there is a real potential harbor at Newport.

A city plan made under the guidance of a carefully selected expert, such expert to be obtained upon the recommendation of a committee of investigation, and the plan to be a general outline covering a period of at least 50 years future growth.

The Chamber of Commerce could help educate the general public to the idea, and present it also to the city trustees, as something necessary for the orderly and economical growth of the city.

Impress the public with the fact that agriculture is not overdeveloped in this county—that there is still room for expansion.
If Santa Ana cares to have the Orange county fair as an annual event some provisions should be made for grounds. Possibly they could co-operate with the fair board to this end.

Urging transportation improvement such as the electrification of S. P. branch lines, lower street car rates, and more extensive bus service.

Continue co-operation with the farm bureau and the agricultural extension service to assist the farming interests in the county.

Assist in making an agricultural survey and locate only as many responsible industries as may be comfortably situated.

The most important service to the community at the present is the leadership of a movement to acquire a city park of at least 40 acres.

Water—then more water—then still more water.
Incidentally we are in great need of a new public library building.

Forward the city plan for a reservoir at an elevation, thus furnishing a gravity supply. There should be a sedimentation and treatment reservoir, the chemical treatment not used as routine but in an emergency. The supply reservoir should be at a slightly lower elevation to render pumping from one reservoir to the other unnecessary.

Agitate a city ordinance requiring metal sewer pipes to be used where a sewer, public or private, is located within 200 feet of a well supplying water for domestic use, and requiring metal connections from laterals.

Annex the proposed manufacturing district to the city so that proper control thereof is possible.

Would you like to see the Chamber have its own home. Do all you can for industrials. Be careful of quarrels and misunderstandings. Work to finish the coast highway. Do not forget the harbor.

CHARTER PRESENTATION TO NEW EXCHANGE CLUB PROVES BRILLIANT AFFAIR

By ELEANOR YOUNG ELLIOTT

For the first time in the history of California Exchange clubs, a charter presentation to a newly organized club was made by the national president of Exchange clubs of the United States, at the charter banquet and ball of the local organization, a brilliant affair held Saturday night at Ebell clubhouse with Dr. George C. Sabichi, national president and Louis Oneal, state president, as distinguished guests of honor.

It was a truly gala occasion, as was well received as was Mr.
"Unity for Service," the chosen motto, of the organization was the keynote of a most eloquent address by the speaker of the evening, Louis Oneal of San Jose, who outlined in his talk, just what the club might mean to its community, its state and its nation.

Clubs' Potent Power
Pointing out one of the greatest benefits following such an organization, Mr. Oneal concluded his address with the declaration that there would be no menace to our country from the Reds, Bolshevism and similar evils if our men continued to co-operate in service clubs, working together for civic and community betterment.

The national president, Dr.
George Sabichi, is also a Californian, residing in Bakersfield, in addition to these two distinguished guests were scores of prominent exchangees from Long Beach, Los Angeles, Wilmington, Santa Monica, Glendale and Hollywood were present to enjoy a most delicious dinner served by Ebell's fourth Household Economics section at tables brilliant with red candles, sprays of scarlet berries and dozens of balloons. The usual amusing favors of snappers, caps and serpentine confetti aided in making a merry occasion.

Wives of the Santa Ana members formed an entertainment committee headed by Mrs. Mac Smith, and welcomed all guests, thus establishing the friendly air of the evening.

Enthusiastic Spirit
The spirit of enthusiasm and vivacity was apparent in the program during and immediately following the dinner. James F. Collins, president of Long Beach Exchange club, was toastmaster. Brevity was the distinguishing mark of every speech made.

Rapid Fire Talks
Such rapid-fire talks gave a freshness and zest to the program that made it most enjoyable to the assembled crowd. A reverent invocation was offered by the Rev.
Perry F. Schrock of the Lions' club, and was followed by a humorously friendly little welcome voiced by
A. L. Olliger, Chamber of Commerce secretary.

Charles D. Swanner offered the infant club's greetings to all visiting Exchangees and then followed an appreciative tribute to Santa Ana's other service clubs, Rotary, Kiwanis, Lions and Knights of the Round Table.

The president of each club responded with friendly words of greeting and good fellowship. L. R.
Crawford, vice president, speaking for Kiwanis; Dr. M. A. Patton, president, for Rotary; H. B. Van Dien, president, for Lions, and Cal Gilbert, vice-president, for the Knights.

Impressive Ceremony
The charter presentation was most impressive, and while Dr.
Sabichi's talk was brief, it embodied the splendid principles of Exchange. Amidst a profound silence, the doctor continued with a ceremony which came as a surprise to many present, the presentation of service pins to two Long Beach members, M. S. Walker and J. Robert Zimmerman through whose efforts as a service committee Santa Ana and three other Exchange clubs have been organized.

To Mr. Collins as representative of the Long Beach club, was also presented a handsome service pennant.

In accepting the charter, President Max Smith voiced his interest in the ideals of Exchange and his faith in the local club and the place it was going to assume in the community.

In the interval between dining and dancing the guests assembled in the main auditorium for a delightful musical program opened by Robert L. Brown whose solo "Shipmates Goodbye" evoked a storm of applause. He was followed by Miss Holly Lash who sang "Love is Just Like a Bird" from Carmen and who

SCOUTS' WORK IS IMPORTANT TO COMMUNITY

One of the most interesting features in the Boy Scout program, is the daily "Good turn" which Scouts are pledged to do. This daily good turn brings many noteworthy and even heroic efforts to the front.
We not only find boys washing dishes, sweeping porches, running errands and helping neighbors with the more common type of good turn, but we find Scouts, because they are prepared, doing their good turn in such a way that heroism is reflected in what they more commonly term a good turn.

Three Orange County scouts have saved the lives of others at the risk of their own life. Others have put in Radios for the entertainment of invalids and sick comrades. Scouts have been known to avoid panics because of quick thinking and coordinated action.

Among the last most noteworthy good turns released by the National Organization includes the following: A Scout saved a friend from bleeding to death while on a hunting trip, because he knew first aid, and knew how to apply a tourni-quet to stop the flowing of arterial bleeding. Another boy apparently drowned after being ensnared in a cold lake for a time, was not only rescued but because the Scout was prepared, was brought back to life again through the method of artificial respiration which all Scouts are taught. Another troop of scouts saved a row of houses from burning by forming a bucket brigade, thus putting out the fire when the entire neighborhood was away at a celebration.

One Orange county boy, too young to become a Scout, recently entered a burning building and saved a young baby from being suffocated and burned to death. When asked why he did it, he said that some day he wanted to be a scout, and he knew that that is what a scout would have done.

It is almost impossible to measure the value of acquiring this good turn habit, and also acquiring the information which makes a Scout at all times prepared to do his daily good turn, but when we give every Scout credit for doing one good turn each day and multiply that by one thousand, we have a minimum of nearly one third of a million good turns in a year in Orange County of old, and better still, boys who have grown too old for Scouting, retain the habit of doing a good turn daily, so that it is almost impossible to estimate the actual number of good turns done in the course of a year, because a community believes enough in its boyhood to make it possible for it to have the Boy Scout Organization.

TRAIL AUTO, NAB THREE SUSPECTS

Trailing the marks of an automobile wheel which had no tire, from 823 South Main street to Orana, Santa Ana policemen apprehended and arrested three young men who were charged with stealing $250 worth of wearing apparel from the delivery car of the Crescent Cleaning company, 618
Wellington street.

The clothing was stolen while W. F. Grigg, driver, was making a delivery Saturday afternoon. All of the apparel was recovered. The arrested men gave their names as Joseph Ramirez, 19; Alfonso
Haskes, 27, and Miguel Samanilo, 22. They will face charges of grand larceny in Justice John Lan-dell's court late today.

When Grigg returned to his car after having delivered a suit at 823 South Main street, an unidentified woman informed him that three men had ransacked his car and had driven north on Main street in a coupe which had only three tires. Grigg hurried to the police station and was joined in the chase by Officers Sid Smith, wick, Earl Lentz, and V. Barnhill who followed the tracks of the metal rim through the business district to Orana, where the trio were eaten sandwiches when the pursuers arrived.

Simplifying Homefurnishing Problems

RE-MAKING the home does not mean revising home finances. Homes are not made in a day—or in a year.
Most folks buy furniture by easy stages—a few pieces at a time.

With such good furniture as we offer, at such easy prices, the matter of making the home more attractive becomes a simple matter indeed.

Remember, too, that the sale of a piece of furniture is NOT completed even after careful delivery to your home. The article must give complete satisfaction and lasting service.

We welcome you to come in and inspect the new things for home furnishing and especially urge you to make price comparisons.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD
THAT HANGS ON

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ. Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes, stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption. Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchitis, catarrh of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after a cold or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist, Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. (Adv.)

Woman's Page
By Eleanor Young Elliott Phone Nine-O. Social Items Fashion HintsPeer Gynt Recital Promises to Be Delightful

In discussing the Peer Gynt program which Ebells' Music section will present Wednesday night at the auditorium as a benefit for the club, Mrs. John Cloyes who will present the recitative numbers of the program, today related a number of interesting details of the first presentation of the famous Norwegian play in Chicago, October 29, 1906, which she, a young girl visiting in the city, was privileged to attend.

With all of youth's enthusiasm, she yielded to the charm of Richard Mansfield then playing in the production, and had the pleasure of seeing him twice during the week's run.

The first production of Peer Gynt was in Christiania in 1876 with Grieg's lovely incidental music as part of it. Mrs. Cloyes declared that to the Norwegians the offering is so typical of national characteristics and so replete with folk-lore that they cannot understand its popularity in other countries. In Norway, the play is by far the most popular one from Ibsen's prolific pen.

In 1923 it was successfully revived in New York City with Joseph Schildkraut in the title role and now it has reached the silver screen with Cyril Maude starring. "The Grieg music is as melodramatic and symbolic as the play," declared Mrs. Cloyes. "Asa's Death," considered by critics as the climax of the play, is almost Slavonic in its haunting melodies.

With Mrs. Cloyes presenting the recitative numbers, Mr. B. Van Dien will give two of Solvieg's beautiful solos, "The Sunshine Song" and "Cradle Song." Mrs. Van Dien will be in costume as will other artists appearing. Mrs. Freda Lawrence will give the Maude Allen interpretation of two beautiful dances, "Asa's Death" and "Antra's Dance." Mrs. Lawrence is a pupil of Mrs. Maude Putnam.

Accompanists will be Miss Leonora Tompkins, leader of the section, and Miss Mabel Krause, and a two-piano rendering of "In the Hall of the Mountain King" by these two artists will be a delightful feature of the evening. Miss Krause will play "Ingrid's Lament" as a piano solo. Miss Georgie Bell Walton will give violin numbers including "Morning."

Youn People Enjoy Merry Party

Francis and Harry Hill entertained a number of their young friends at a very pleasant party last Friday evening at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Hill, 703 Spurgeon street. Miss Ruby Ranney, formerly of Kansas City, assisted during the evening.

Yellow chrysanthemums and cosmos brightened the living rooms, where the young folk participated in games, dancing and music. The new game of "cuckoo" created much merriment.

Late in the evening refreshments of hot chocolate, wafers and candies were served in the dining room, where dainty pink and white cosmos made attractive decorations.

Besides the young hosts, those enjoying the evening were the Misses Esther Leorch, Jane Crawford, Alda Weaver, Doris Hill, Mrs. Sam Hill and Mrs. Weaver; Messrs. Lynn Weaver, David Hill, Donald Harwood and Herbert Hill.

Frances Willard

The Dramatics club of Francis Willard school met last Thursday and elected officers as follows: President, Josephine ABII; vice-president, Herbert Hill; secretary and treasurer, Catherine Walbridge and reporter, Mary Blakeman.

Miss Pixley is in charge of the club and she is planning on the first play, which has already been selected, to be given before Christmas.

Exhibit Case
A new exhibit case has been placed in the main hall of the Frances Willard school. This case has already proven its worth as an asset to the school for it has attracted a great deal of attention and interest. Many worthwhile things have been exhibited from various classes, especially from the manual training, domestic science and art departments.

All of the pupils are anxious to make something worth-while so will be put on exhibition. We are glad that so many of the parents have come to see what we have on display and are hoping that many more will come.

Faculty Luncheon
The teachers of the Frances Willard school enjoyed a faculty luncheon last Thursday. This took the place of a regular faculty meeting and the teachers discussed the Dalton Plan.

P. T. A. Notice
The Parent-Teachers Association are planning a very unique and interesting program to be held at the school next Thursday night. The purpose of this meeting being held at night is so the fathers can attend.

The program will be a regular school schedule of the six periods and each period will be about ten minutes long. The parents will be asked to follow out the program of their child, going to each of his classes and answering to the regular class roll call.

We are in hopes that each child will be represented by one, if not both parents.

Boomerang Cast Loses Member to Cupid at Glendale Wedding

Followers of Community Players' successes will be deeply interested in the marriage of Miss Dorothy Louise Dagley who took a prominent part in the latest Community play, "The Boomerang" and who was wedded yesterday in Glendale to Milton N. Patterson, head of the Glendale advertising department of a Los Angeles daily paper.

"The Little Church of the Flowers" offered a charming setting for the ceremony which was read by the Rev. A. Lincoln Faris, pastor of the Glendale M. E. church, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

Only immediate relatives and a very few close friends assembled for the nuptials which were preceded by an interesting recital with Mrs. R. S. Briggs of this city at the organ. Mr. Patterson's cousin, Miss Auida Lutz sang "I Love You Truly" (Carrie Jacobs Bond) and Albert E. Greenstreet of Pasadena sang De Koven's "Oh Promise Me."

Miss Dagley, wearing a smart afternoon gown of brocade, flared crepe carrying an arm cluster of bride's roses, entered the church upon the arm of Mr. Patterson to the strains of Lohengrin played by Mrs. Briggs. There were no attendants and after the young people repeated their wedding vows, a brief reception was followed by their leaving for a Camp Bally honeymoon.

Upon their return they will be established in a pretty Glendale bungalow which is all furnished and awaiting their arrival.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Dagley and with her parents, came to Santa Ana from Glendale last July to reside.

In addition to her parents, Santa Anans at the wedding included Mrs. W. N. Cummings and Miss Margaret Cummings.

Merry Group Enjoys Turkey Dinner

Members of Mr. T. M. Purdim's Young Men's Bible class of Spurgeon Memorial church, and their young woman friends, enjoyed a turkey dinner and social time at Colonial club Saturday evening.

Those present were the Misses Mary Jo Anderson, Edna Dickson, Mary Rogers, Velma Mahaffey, Zelma Hayward, Florence Johnson, Ruby Cole, Cynthia Kirwin, Loreta Rudolph, Reta Nichols, Lillian Arnold and Margaret Heemstra and Messrs. T. W. Oglesby, L. Gorze-man, Allan McClune, W. T. Palmer, Louis Napier, Edgar Dickson, Wallace McClune, J. Farney, E. Gorze-man, Henry Lantz, L. A. Naisch, Jack Stratton and Charley Widney Jr. who as president of the class was chairman and host.

An entertainment given at the close of the dinner consisted of choruses by the group with Miss Thelma Simmons at the piano and Allan McClune, Miss Kirwin contributed to the enjoyment of the evening by several pianoliques, cleverly rendered. Miss Dolly Dennis delighted the audience by readings from several well known authors.

St. Peter's Bazaar To Be Held at Y

The big chicken pie supper and Christmas bazaar which the women of the St. Peter Luther Aid society will present Thursday evening, will be held at the Y. M. C. A. basement dining-room, according to a change in plans announced today.

Serving will begin at 5:30 o'clock and in addition to the delectable supper which will be served, the guests will be given the opportunity to obtain handsome pieces of needlework suitable for Christmas giving.

class of the Frances Willard school an interesting talk on librarians. These are the qualifications of which she said you must have: (1) quickness, (2), accuracy, (3) neatness, and (4) a good education. She must have at least a two-year training course and know two languages such as French and Spanish. Typewriting comes in very handy because there is work every day to be typed, such as cards, etc. She wrote a sketch on the black boards, illustrating how to find a book in the library.

We all appreciated her talk very much. A few of the girls are thinking of taking up library work for their vocations.

Calumpit Folk Plan Merry Shower For First Bride

A delightful surprise was planned to honor Miss Louise Plummer last Saturday evening when she and her fiancé, Lyle McCain of Los Angeles, accepted an invitation to a family dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Wassum, and the guests (16 automobile loads of them) arrived while the party was enjoying a three-course dinner.

Miss Plummer is a charter member of Calumpit auxiliary and the guests were members of the camp and auxiliary who were happy in recognizing her engagement to Mr. McCain and wished to show their interest in the wedding which is to be an event of the Christmas holidays. The bride-elect's popularity among the members is aided by her excellent dancing for which she is achieving quite a reputation.

Mr. McCain is an electrician and is equally popular among the members and friends of Calumpit organizations. Their wedding will be the first since the auxiliary was organized and all members are enjoying the romance of the affair.

In honor of the surprise, Mrs. Wassum adorned her home with garlands of ferns entwined with bleeding hearts and with baskets of roses and poinsettias. An interesting program of games and "stunts" was presented under the direction of Mrs. Myrtle Waffle, president of the auxiliary and Mrs. Bertha Dugdale.

In the merry games, Charles E. Dixon, department inspector, was penalized for answering "Crocus" (crock us) to the flower courtship question, "How was her consent given?" and also for asserting that snailflowers were superior to crocuses, thus advertising his native state of Kansas. Charles W. Kincaid, officer of the day, was charged with mispronouncing "beast" and Sherman Glaze was penalized for stuttering.

The guests were then lined up with the honorees in their midst and "Bishop" Tantlinger, popular senior vicecommander of the camp, made an expressive presentation speech and on behalf of the Calumpit folk gave Miss Plummer and Mr. McCain a handsome blue and gold case filled with a set of silver flatware of 37 pieces.

Mrs. Bertha N. Dixon, assisted by Mrs. Wassum and Mrs. Dugdale had visited members of the organizations for their contribution towards the fund and had selected the handsome gift. Miss Plummer made a little response to the gift by quoting an earlier remark, "This is so sudden—it takes my breath away" and Mr. McCain also acknowledged the courtesy shown them.

A lap supper of home-made cake, coffee, peaches and cream was served.

Those present were Messrs. and Mesdames H. A. Wassum, Charles E. Dixon, F. P. Rowe, Charles W. Winter, Charles W. Kincaid, B. F. Botkin, Jesse F. Donovan, A. P. Dresser, T. P. McDunnell, Marriott C. Connor, Earl L. Camp, Charles E. Waffle, U. S. Glaze, Hardin T. Reed, M. R. Markwalder, Ed. Pat-mor and Walter W. Tantlinger; Mrs. Bertha Dugdale, Mrs. Maud Miller, Mrs. Minnie Johnson, Mrs. A. B. Annin, Mrs. Muriel Pope, Mrs. Lulu Chatlain, Mrs. Alice Gay; Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Leahy, the Misses Louise Plummer, Mildred Reed, Harriet Reed, Ruth Winter, Virginia Pope, Josephine Miller, Faith Dugdale, Louise Markwalder, Elizabeth Wassum, Norma Tantlinger, Lulu McDunnell, Mabel Dixon, Maxine and Marian Waffle; Messrs. Lyle McCain, Jesse Donovan Jr., and Virgil Reed and Masters Arnett Camp, Lawrence Dresser, Billy Wassum and Baby Harriett Plummer.

Girl Reserves Plan Gay Carnival For Sweet Charity

Are you interested in having a happy time and at the same time, aiding in a worthy cause?

If so (and who among us isn't?) the announcement that the Girls' Reserves plan a carnival for next Saturday night, will be of extreme interest, for the carnival will offer one of the merriest events of the pre-holiday season and at the same time insure a happy fortunate time for a number of less fortunate folk into whose lives the organization plans to bring a bit of cheer.

The old gas office in the Masonic temple has been placed at the disposal of the young people through the courtesy of the Masons, and the Gas company has offered co-operation as well, by promising to install lights for the event.

Hawaiian and Chinese booths will be among the picturesque features while fortune telling, an indoor circus, a crazy house and of course all manner of refreshment booths will be in readiness for the merry-makers. In addition the officers of the Reserves who form the committee on arrangements, are arranging for a short entertaining program to be given at 8 o'clock, after the guests have had an opportunity to visit the various booths. The carnival will open at 7 o'clock.

Miss Jessie Emma Files is advisor to the group whose officers are Miss Lucille Bales, president; Miss Helen Battey, vice president; Miss Margaret Gaeb, secretary; and Miss Virginia Lowell, social service secretary.

Ebells Gardeners

Stressing the point that the very small admission asked to the lecture by George Perkins on roses and their culture was to cover the clubhouse expenses, members of the Garden section of Ebells society today extended a cordial invitation to all men and women interested in rose culture, to attend the lecture which will be given at 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon, following the section meeting at 2 o'clock.

Since December and January will be the time to plant free-rooted roses, and Mr. Perkins, an authority on the subject, will tell

Mock-Wedding Guests Present Gifts to Bride-elect

Last Friday evening Mrs. John Cleary and Mrs. Charles Cleary conspired to present a unique miscellaneous shower at 902 East Pine street in honor of Miss Frances Cleary whose marriage to Matthew Thome will take place at an early date.

Causing much merriment was the chief entertaining event of the pleasant evening, a mock wedding performed underneath an arch of ferns and chrysanthemums. Mrs. Ralph Drage took the part of the bride, with Mrs. D. T. Hayden as groom and Mrs. Charles Frasier as the minister. Mrs. Elizabeth Cleary and Miss Margaret Gaeb were ring bearer and flower girl.

Following the ceremony the "bridal couple" presented the honoree, Miss Cleary, with their much decorated suitcases and traveling bag, which upon being opened displayed many parcels containing lovely gifts. Light refreshments were served ere the happy evening came to an end.

Household Economics

A worth while and very interesting meeting of the Fourth Economics section of the Ebells was held yesterday afternoon at the hospitable home of Mrs. Charles F. Mitchell, at 438 South Sycamore street, when twenty-six members enjoyed the luncheon and program which followed. The hostesses for the meeting were Mesrs. Edward C. Erwin, Sarah Luker and Mrs. Mitchell.

A Thanksgiving menu was served including delicious baked ham and plum pudding. The tables were beautifully decorated with autumn leaves and candles shed a soft glow over the pretty scene. Roll call was answered with recipes and hints for inexpensive cookery and Mrs. Elmer Bowers was welcomed as a new member.

It was decided to present a con-all manner of interesting and valuable details regarding their growth and culture, a large crowd is expected to be present and glean items of value to them in their growing of the southland's most beautiful flower.

EXAMINE 17,000 DOCUMENTS FOR LINCOLN FILM

In examining more than 17,000 books and documents about Abraham Lincoln the researchers for the Rockett Lincoln Film company, producers of "Abraham Lincoln," the picture now showing at the West End theater have amassed almost countless odds and ends of facts—little things—that go to make up the sum total of Lincolniana. Do you know these?

Mr. Lincoln told Leonard Sweet he had never tasted whiskey. But he loved corn in those other four popular pioneer forms—hog, hominy, hoe cake and on the cob.

He had a good singing voice and loved to sing as he drove through the country—a habit of the pioneers.

He loved animals and birds, but did not care particularly for flowers. He said he had had no time to study them.

The first and only steamboat that ever navigated the Sangamon river was piloted by Lincoln. Abraham Lincoln was of Quaker stock and proud of it.

During his residence in Indiana he borrowed and read every book within a radius of fifty miles of his home.

He stood six feet four without his boots and could lift a thousand pounds.

"JANICE MEREDITH" OPENS AT WALKER'S TONIGHT

Acclaimed by Los Angeles critics as the finest achievement in motion picture history, "Janice Meredith," the new Marion Davies photoplay, opens at Walker's Orange county theater today for a run of four days. "Janice Meredith" is the screen version of Paul Leicester Ford's romance of the American Revolution.

Miss Davies, acting in the title role, has been greeted with acclaim, displaying a charm, a versatility, a captivating sense of comedy, and an emotional force that stamp her as one of the most distinguished actresses on the screen.

She plays the role of the charming and spirited daughter of Squire Meredith, a staunch old Tory landowner. Her love for Jack Breton, a young officer in Washington's army, wins her over to the cause of the American Colonies and carries her through many thrilling adventures during the turbulent days of the Revolution.

In keeping with the sterling excellence of the production, the characters of "Janice Meredith" are enacted by probably the greatest cast ever assembled on either stage or screen. In the supporting roles, chief prominence is given to Holbrook Blinn, who portrays the suave and villainous British officer, Lord Clowes.

Harrison Ford, who played opposite Miss Davies in "Little Old New York," has the hero role of Jack Breton.

"RECKLESS ROMANCE" ON SCREEN AT TEMPLE

Movie fans who remember seeing the recent Al Christie feature "Hold Your Breath" with its slapdash comedy and thrills will be surprised at the versatility of the organization when they see the next Christie feature, "Reckless Romance" now showing at the Temple theater.

Both pictures are feature-length comedies, but in that the comparison stops, for "Reckless Romance" is a comedy picture of an entirely different type. It has fast action but it is straight farce, one of the things which the Al Christie organization has the reputation of being specialists in.

Depending as it does on putting over farcical situation comedy rather than broad gags and "humor," the picture has called for an excellent cast to play the various roles in a skilful manner.

The two feminine leads are Wanda Hawley and Sylvia Breamer. The two chief male roles are played by T. Roy Barnes and Harry Myers. Tully Marshall, Lincoln Plumer and Jack Duffy portray the character roles, while Morgan Wallace is the villain. Plumer and Jack Duffy have been identified with the Christie short comedies, and Barnes and Marshall have previously appeared in Al Christie features.

"ANOTHER MAN'S WIFE" AT YOST TONIGHT

It cost a small fortune to reproduce the stoke hold of the S. S. Alexandria that supplies one of the most thrilling episodes of the shipwreck scenes in "Another Man's Wife," which comes to the Yost theater tonight.

The three boilers used in this photo-dramatic sensation alone cost $500 each, adding a big item to the cost of production. And surrounding the massive boilers, from which steam escapes and the radiation of the fires is seen, a specially constructed tank was built to hold the flood water for the scene in which Fred Kohler, as the chief stoker, battles with his frenzied men after the Alexandria crashes into a tug

SCHOOL NEWS

Roosevelt

The teachers of Roosevelt school met with their principal, Miss Wells, on last Thursday afternoon. Miss Wells gave an interesting account of the remarks of Mr. Miller, the probation officer, to the principals, at their meeting the previous evening. We greatly appreciated hearing this.

Among other things it was decided that next Thursday will be "open house" at Roosevelt. At this time we shall be glad to greet the parents and all who are interested in school work.

The high sixth grade of the school had the interesting experience of visiting the polls on election day with their history teacher, Miss Lindsay.

Roosevelt played John Muir last week. There were two baseball games, played by the first and second teams respectively. John Muir's first team was victorious while Roosevelt's second team won the honors.

The sixth graders are doing some very interesting work in their reading classes. After reading a book they have chosen from those at the public library, they make both a written and oral report of the results of their reading, as well as their impressions and comments on same. Those who feel the artistic urge often illustrate these reports.

The last reports of this class were enclosed in book covers of their own creation with suggestions from Miss Davis, the art teacher. The co-operation of these two departments acts as an added incentive to the readers as well as a motivation to the art work.

Posters were finished last week to aid in the Community Chest drive. Both community and individual ones were made. The two best posters of the latter group were chosen from those made by the sixth grade. The originators of these two splendid ones are Louis Best and Phyllis Pope.

The low sixth grade of the Roosevelt school has formed a Current Events club. Every Friday the members of the club bring a current event to read. The president of the club, who is elected every month, presides at all these meetings. Beginning use of parliamentary drill is started in this class. The president of this organization is Irene Ross and the secretary is Annie Brown.

The high sixth class has an "Around the World Club". This club has weekly business meetings electing new officers every month. Also many varied oral and written reports from members of the club are given at these meetings. The officers of this club are: President, Dorothy Reeves; secretary, Laura Hacklander and treasurer, Helen Greer.

Artesia school may be proud of its baseball team. These young men won the game played with Roosevelt Friday evening, with a score of 26 to 10.

Julia Lathrop

The Parent-Teacher association of The Julia Lathrop school, has a unique history of which its membership is very proud. It was organized at the request of the principal, H. G. Nelson, more than four months previous to the division of the Junior high schools into their present form, and eight months later when the new building was opened for school purposes, the association had grown to be the largest in Orange county.

Having firmly established itself, the association was ready at the opening of the current year, to build its activities and programs upon the three subjects, about which all parent-teacher work should center: the Home, the Child, the School. Two objectives have been chosen—an educated membership and closer relations between home and school. Splendid programs are in the making, built upon the thought of "Getting Acquainted With Our City," "With Our Schools," "With Our Children," and "With Our Laws."

All parents in the Julia Lathrop district are urged to give their hearty support to the membership drive, which the children are conducting; a party full of fun and surprises has been promised the section securing the largest percentage of both parents as members, and this can be accomplished only by the co-operation of the parents. Visiting day for the school on Tuesday, November 18, with the regular association meeting at 3 o'clock, should be on every parent's calendar; help to make this day a real red-letter one in the history of the school.

The students of Julia C. Lathrop are experimenting with a self government project. One of the pupils states the case in an editorial for the school paper the "Lathrop Line-up."

Better Citizens

"Do you think the conduct of the school is what it should be? Students, the only way we can raise the standard of the school is by co-operation. That is—everybody must pull together. We don't want one person pulling against us."

The teachers are not here to stand in the halls like policemen and watch us. They are here to teach us and help us with our studies.

Students! There are three things that will put Julia C. Lathrop on the map and they are courtesy, honesty and co-operation. This week is courtesy week. The high and low nines are trying to put over a big problem which is a student body for the school. This means that the teachers are giving us a chance to govern ourselves. If we can learn here, as students, to govern and control our conduct, we shall be the better prepared to aid in self government as citizens.

Self government in order to be successful must have the support of all students composing the student body.

I think that we can best control our own conduct by reminding ourselves every day, not to do anything that everybody in the whole student body couldn't do with equal freedom.

If we will just try hard to be unselfish, I am sure our attempt at self government will be a great success."

MIKE MATHES.

Coach and Mrs. J. W. Reel entertained the football squad at a delightful party in the school cafeteria, Friday, November 13. There were about 50 guests present.

National Educational Week Beginning today, November 17, the week has been proclaimed by the president of the United States as American Educational week. It is sponsored by every one interested in public education. All parents and friends are requested to make a special effort to visit the school on Tuesday of that week when we will hold "open house." There will be special assembly at 10:30 on Tuesday morning in honor of our visitors.

Friday, November 21, a school fair will be held in room eleven during the day and evening. The exhibits will be representative of the work of pupils in all departments of school activity. Interesting work has been done in the various departments which will be displayed at the fair.

From all indications the fair is going to be a real fair from the way the girls in the sewing department are making their entries. The girls are going to show their mothers and friends what they can do. Their work speaks for itself. Plain sewing and fancy work will be exhibited. The articles are too numerous to mention—but there will be dresses, aprons, undergarments, luncheon sets, scarfs, pillows, etc.

Quite a bit of interest exists now as the sewing note books and posters have been judged—the makers of the best are to be rewarded in the near future.

In sewing the girls are going just as fast as they can on their work, covering the required field and as much more as possible.

The typing department is to have a very attractive exhibit made up of different designs that have been made by the students on their typewriters. There are landscape designs, American flags, eagles, squirrels, and many others, besides perfect lesson papers. The booth is to be decorated in green and white cloth which are the school colors.

The girls of the cooking classes have been canning and trying their best to make this booth a success. They are also entering some of their canned goods.

One of the interesting features of Education week will be a baseball game in arithmetic between the Giants and Senators, the two teams of the 2A class.

The captains are Karl Gearhart and Bertha Bordon. They are to play Tuesday, November 18, which is visiting day.

It will be a great game for they have been practicing for some time and are getting in very good form. They are hoping to have a large number of mothers and visitors as spectators.

Parent-Teachers

LOWELL

The Parent-Teacher association of Lowell school met Thursday afternoon in the kindergarten room with an interesting and instructive program.

The meeting opened with community singing led by Miss Jean Jones who was assisted by Miss Hattie Hutton at the piano. The children's program, arranged and presented by Mrs. Hazel Maxwell, primary teacher, was as follows: "Thanksgiving Day" by the 2A class; "Why Gobble Changed His Tune" by the 2B class; a group of songs by the 1B class.

A feature of the afternoon was a parliamentary drill conducted by Mrs. Roy Horton, district parliamentarian. Mrs. Horton, who handles this branch of P.T.A. work exceptionally well, explained, in her sincere manner, the object and fundamental principles of parliamentary law.

During the business session it was decided to purchase a mimeograph to be used in the school.

The main speaker of the afternoon, the Rev. W. L. H. Benton, gave his splendid address, "What the P. T. A. Should Mean in Every Home," which was greatly enjoyed by every one present. After hearing Mr. Benton, one can quickly realize how much he loves children and how greatly interested he must be in the study of "Child Welfare."

Greetings were brought to the Lowell P.T.A. by visiting presidents; Mrs. John Sexton of the Lincoln P. T. A., and Mrs. Ora Heine of the McKinley P. T. A.

The remainder of the afternoon was spent in a social hour and at this time Mrs. John Markwalder, refreshment chairman and her committee, Mrs. Gidcomb, Mrs. Hatch and Mrs. Nelson, served tea and wafers.

Support Needed For Chest Says Zerman

Much can be accomplished for Santa Ana, as our industrial growth continues, by the Community Chest plan.

First: By constructive and well-guided welfare work, through the inspection of the agencies who enter the Community Chest plan.

Second: By creating a larger number of givers as has been the experience in other cities where the Chest plan has been put into effect—thereby reducing the burden of a few givers.

Third: It is a modern and business-like way of handling this matter; saving time for the team workers and preventing overlapping of charity works.

Compared with the amount per capita of other cities, the amount set for our drive should go over in fine shape—if everybody will become interested and do what they can.

'KICK-OFF' IN COMMUNITY CHEST DRIVE TONIGHT

THREE DIVISION MANAGERS

Here are the division managers of the teams which are going for the $30,000 for Santa Ana's Community Chest. They are W. D. Rudd (left), in charge of teams 11 to 15, inclusive, known as Chest Builders; W. V. Whitson (center), teams 1 to 5, Chest Builders; John Estes, Jr. (right), teams 6 to 10, Chest Builders.

Y. W. C. A. HAS BIG GROWTH IN SANTA ANA

The Y. W. C. A. is a girls' club organization. It has been operating in Santa Ana for the past two years and although still young has shown a remarkable growth and success thus far.

Founded on the spirit of service the organization has been built solidly in Santa Ana. Girls are taking a big interest in their classes, and new classes are to be organized as soon as possible.

It is hoped by leaders of the organization that the success of the Community Chest drive will enable them to employ a full time trained secretary to more systematically handle the clubs and classes, "so that every high school girl in the county can derive the benefit from the 'Y. W.' that they should," stated one of the officials today.

CHEST IDEA IS GIVEN SUPPORT BY S. A. PEOPLE

Virtually Every Organization Approves Grouping Plan For Annual Drive

SCORES of citizens and a large number of civic and fraternal organizations of Santa Ana have come to the front to highly praise and endorse the Community Chest idea for Santa Ana, believing this to be the most uniform way in which to aid the needy.

Virtually every organization whose purpose is to better Santa Ana have expressed their ideas concerning the Chest and all approve of the plan. The latest declarations of approval have come from the presidents of the Santa Ana Exchange club, Rotary club, Kiwanis and Lions' clubs.

Here is Message

Following is the message received today from Max M. Smith, president of the newly organized Exchange club:

"The Exchange club members strongly endorse the Community Chest plan. At their regular meetings the plan has been discussed and favorable action taken. The members are ready and willing to do their utmost to assist in carrying through to a successful finish this most worthy movement.

"The club's motto 'Unity for Service' is strongly exemplified in its desire to co-operate with all civic and service-luncheon clubs in the present Community Chest plan."

Dr. M. A. Patton, head of the local Rotarians, sends the following encouraging declaration to the chest officials:

"Rotary's motto is 'He Profits Most Who Serves Best', and while at first that motto might be construed to mean an entirely commercial service, however, the Rotary principle does not permit the service ideal being confined entirely to one's business. It requires service to the community and to those agencies of the community which are responsible for building a fully developed community. Unquestionably all Rotarians feel a heart felt interest in the Community Chest because it permits unified community service."

CHEST PRESIDENT MAKES STATEMENT

The following is a statement by W. H. Spurgeon, Jr., president of the Community Chest, relative to the campaign:

"Efficiency, Economy, Co-operation

"Three ideals toward which every one is striving, and it is upon these ideals, which have almost become watchwords, since the early dark days of the war, that we are basing the organization of our Community Chest."

"It is efficient because it saves the time of the busy men who make the solicitations on all campaigns. The giver lumps all of his gifts in one, thus saving the possible annoyance of many interviews. It also gives further assurance of efficiency in all of the participating agencies, because of the close scrutiny of a Budget Committee who has no particular interest in any agency."

"The move is economical because it saves expense in raising money. This is particularly true this year because no professional campaign director will be employed. Thus all of the money raised except a little for keeping the Chest's books, will actually be spent in administering the affairs of the participating agencies."

"A greater spirit of co-operation is being developed first, because all of the welfare agencies are uniting in one big effort to finance their work and secondly, because each subscriber can then feel that his gift, whether $10 or $1,000, will go toward the building of a great co-operative, humanitarian work for the balanced development of his city."

"The Salvation Army, with its work among the poor and needy in reclaiming lost manhood and womanhood; the Y. M. C. A. with its program of 'Spirit, Mind and Body' development among young men and boys; the Y. W. C. A. with its similar work among girls and young women; the American Red Cross, 'The Greatest Mother of All,' the Veterans' Welfare Association with its most necessary work of caring for the needy ex-soldier; and the Boy Scouts of America with its program of 'Character Development and Citizenship Training for Boys,' are co-operatively asking for your earnest co-operation when you are invited to support Santa Ana's Community Chest."

BOARD OF DIRECTORS OF COMMUNITY CHEST
By W. H. SPURGEON, Jr., President.

ADVANTAGES OF CHEST PLAN

Here are the outstanding advantages of the community chest plan by which one central agency makes one general appeal to conscience and humanity. It relieves the various philanthropies in the city of the need of making separate and independent drives from time to time during the year. It also relieves the contributor of the need of listening to new appeals nearly every day of the year—a fact that should be appreciated by the busy business or professional man.

It saves overhead expense incidental to putting on various campaigns. There are no parties, benefits, lotteries, bazaars, or other indirect and costly methods of raising money. The two great advantages of this method are first, the great saving in substituting one big appeal for the number of small ones with their wasted effort and duplication, and second, the business-like procedure under which the expense of raising the money is reduced to a minimum.

$30,000 IS SOUGHT IN 4 DAY CAMPAIGN BY 200 SOLICITORS

WITH THE PLAN of their work extended to cover the community generally, the Santa Ana Community Chest, a body of public spirited citizens, assisted by 200 volunteer workers, in charge of the canvass to raise $30,000 for the first community chest in this city, today is beginning a four-day intensive effort to reach that goal.

The opening gun of the drive will be sounded tonight at a booster banquet to be held at the First Christian church for the officers of the Community Chest, the personnel of the different committees, and the personnel of the 17 teams that will set out to fill the chest.

All arrangements have been completed for this important event, which marks the starting point of a new idea in the development in community philanthropy and at the same time a revolutionary change in the public attitude toward organized charity and social welfare work.

Leslie Henry to Speak

Leslie Henry, past district governor of Kiwanis, a prominent Los Angeles banker, and incidentally one of the best known orators in the Southland, is listed as the principal speaker. He is going to inspire the campaigners with the necessary amount of "pep" to put the teams in first class working order. Speakers drawn from the ranks of the directors of the Community Chest will furnish the "whys" and "wherefores" on the project, including information how it has worked out in other cities. The necessary dinner guests, including division managers, assistant division managers, team captains and team workers.

Results of each day's work by the different teams will be reported at noon-day luncheons to be held in the basement of the First Christian church, which place has been selected as campaign headquarters.

The adoption of the Community Chest plan in Santa Ana was made upon the recommendation of a special committee appointed by the local chamber of commerce. This committee composed of Roland E. Dye, E. T. McFadden, Albert F. Hill, F. C. Blauer and H. J. Lowe made a comprehensive study of cities having problems analogous to Santa Ana. It also studied analytical reports printed by banking institutions in Los Angeles, and by the Chicago Council of Social Agencies. In addition to this, information was secured from every known source, all of which pointed to the desirability of the Community Chest plan as the ideal method of raising and administering money for Santa Ana's social welfare activities.

Through this membership, the Junior Red Cross is also brought under the Community Chest. The quota asked for by the Red Cross and allowed by the budget committee includes $275 for the Junior Red Cross work in Santa Ana.

The budget allowed for the Red Cross is $1975. Of this amount, $1700 is to go to the chapter and $275 to the Junior Red Cross.

Of the $1700 that will go to the chapter, one-half—$850—will be sent to national headquarters as Santa Ana's contribution to the great world-wide work of the Red Cross.

Wherever disaster may occur, whether in China or Norway, in Oakland or Chicago, there Santa Ana will be represented bringing relief. This city will send $850 to become a part of a large sum of money to be used for saving lives and bringing aid and comfort to men, women and children everywhere. This money will be used to help human beings whose homes have been desolated or destroyed by great fires, floods, earthquakes or pestilence. Whenever a disaster brings about a condition calling for quick, organized relief on a large scale, beyond the power of local organizations to meet, the Red Cross stands ready to answer the call.

This $850 will represent Santa Ana's contribution to a fund that may also be used for hospital work, and for relief among destitute in foreign lands.

Of the $1700 there will be $850 kept in Santa Ana for local work. It has been the policy, on agreement with the American Legion, for the Red Cross to take care of local ex-service men's cases in which need for help arises. The Legion, in addition to its local cases, handles all transient cases, for it is in a position to better judge of discharges and other papers that transient applicants for help may present.

Money held by the chapter is also available for other purposes. During the epidemic of typhoid, the chapter's funds were made available for use in cases recommended to it by health authorities and local physicians.

The Junior Red Cross work is

ARMY JOINS IN CAMPAIGN THROUGH CHEST

The Salvation Army is the "friend to the friend in need."

To go into detail as to the work the Salvation Army does in and around Santa Ana would take many pages of type written copy, but a few happenings here during the past few months give a general impression of the nature of the good work this organization is doing.

A fire started in a house and burned the bed of the occupant. The Salvation Army had another bed in the room before the occupant was even aware of the fire. Within a few hours his room had been refurnished completely.

"A baby is born with no preparation made for it. Within two hours the Salvationists has ample amount of clothes ready to place on the new arrival," stated one Salvation Army man today.

To help the needy. To provide for those that are not able to provide for themselves, that's the Salvation Army.

"A man may be down but he is never out" is the famous slogan of the "S. A." and it has rung in all corners of the world. The Salvation Army made a name for itself that was never before equalled by any organization, during the World War, and it has been said that the work they accomplished during that period was enough to entitle them to the highest rank and award for service rendered.

There is never a day that passes without a call to the Salvation Army for help of some nature and when the call comes, it is answered. No more can be said for any organization.

School Head Sees Chest Well Filled

Santa Ana has had a phenomenal growth in population and wealth in the past few years. Many families from various parts of our country seeking the most favored spot on earth for homes have found Santa Ana the climax of their dreams. The next few days during the Community Chest campaign will determine whether the generosity of our people has kept pace with the material growth of our fair city.

During the late war when one campaign for funds followed another for more funds in quick succession, the people of Santa Ana rose to the occasion and met every call nobly and generously. Now when the call comes to us to support such worthy home organizations, surely we shall give and if needs be until it hurts.

REALTORS BACK CAMPAIGN PLAN

BY W. B. MARTIN
Secretary, Santa Ana Board of Realtors

In a growing prosperous community of homes such as Santa Ana is and will continue to be, it devolves upon the citizens to look carefully to their public affairs and create real values in the community, not from a monetary standpoint so much as from a standpoint of clean living conditions, proper environment for the growing children; morally, spiritually, and physically.

An opportunity for us to do this and do it right is presented in the Community Chest campaign which will be conducted the week of November 17. The funds raised in this campaign will go absolutely for

Headquarters Changed To Church

The Santa Ana Community Chest headquarters were moved this morning from 219 Spurgeon Building to the basement of the First Christian Church, Sixth and North Broadway. A telephone was installed this morning, the number of which can be obtained by calling "Information."

In connection with the transfer of the campaign headquarters, Campaign Manager Roland E. Dye requests that the members of the "Sub committee to assist the directors in the campaign" report today as soon as possible at the new headquarters in order to check up on cards, and in this way avoid duplication of effort.

Worn Out With Backache?

Is a dull, constant backache slowing you up? Are you lame and stiff—tortured with stabbing pains? Feel weak, tired, utterly "played out?"

Then look to your kidneys! Backache is often a warning that the kidneys are not properly filtering body-poisons from the blood. The whole system is upset by these impurities—you suffer rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness and distressing bladder irregularities.

Don't risk serious sickness! Get to the cause of these aches and pains. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have helped thousands. They should help you. Ask your neighbor!

Here is Santa Ana Proof:

Wilson A. O'barr, tinsmith, 1025 W. Second St., says: "When I was in a cramped position a sharp pain caught me in the small of my back. My kidneys acted irregularly and I had headaches and dizzy spells. Doan's Pills relieved the pains and regulated my kidneys."

OVER THREE YEARS LATER, Mr. O'barr said: "I haven't needed a kidney remedy since Doan's cured me."

News From Orange County

COMPROMISE IS SOUGHT IN TIDELAND CASE

NEWPORT BEACH, Nov. 17.—That a compromise will be effected in settling ownership of tide lands, so that the way may be paved for calling a harbor bond election and presentation of the matter at the meeting Tuesday of the Orange county board of supervisors, was the belief of Thomas Talbot, chairman of the board.

"We shall seek to settle the controversy by conference," said Mr. Talbot today, "and a fair basis would be a 4-6 tide height. However, it might be necessary to institute friendly suit to quiet title as I understand the state or government would insist on that. Without doubt, this matter will come up at the board meeting next Tuesday. Some discussion was had on the subject at the last meeting."

The tide land matter was brought to a head by members of Harbor commission. H. A. Lake, chairman, at the meeting of the Newport Beach Chamber of Commerce Wednesday, stated that the supervisors were asked why action had not been taken on the tide land situation, as advocated in the report of the old harbor commission when it retired some months ago.

"Some people seem to be afraid to have the bond issue put before the voters," said Mr. Lake. "I believe that is a mistake. U. S. District Engineer H. A. Finch told us that we must dredge a 25-foot channel if we want commerce to come in; that the harbor must be operated under unified control, either by city or county."

"I believe this country is on the verge of the greatest era of prosperity it has ever seen. If we wait too long in getting our harbor in shape, we will be too late. This country has a heavy orange crop and prices will be such as to put every rancher on his feet. R. J. McFadden of Placentia says the bonds will carry in his section and as soon as the commission has decided itself what should be done it will make its recommendations."

BAZAAR SCORES FINE SUCCESS

EL TORO, Nov. 17.—The now famous bazaar spread by the El Toro Woman's club, at the hall Saturday evening, was a splendid success, not only socially, but financially as well. The crowd came early and stayed late, enjoying themselves every minute.

Shortly after 8 o'clock, a one-act play, "Mrs. Oakley's Telephone," was given with the following cast: Mrs. Oakley, a bride, Doris Prothro; Constance, her friend, Maxine Cornelius; Mary, the cook, Ruth Trapp; Emma, the maid, Stella Swartz. The comedy was well received by those present, much credit being given the director, Doris Prothro.

Raymond Prothro then announced a farm center meeting on November 21 at which time the Cypress center will send entertainers to El Toro. A song, "The Old Fashioned Garden," and dancing of the Virginia reel by Misses Charlene Mae and Stella Swartz, Maxine Cornelius, Dorothy Trapp, Charlotte Moulton, Mrs. George Osterman, and Messrs. John Trapp, Bruce Gould, Ernest Boynton, George and Richard Harris, concluded the program.

The booths were opened to patrons after the entertainment, and soon the stocks were depleted. Chances were sold on a quilt made by the club women and a mama doll donated by a friend, with Walter Tait holding the lucky number on the quilt and Cleo's Roman winning the doll.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Prothro were hosts at a family dinner Thursday, celebrating the first birthday of their little son, Raymond Jr.

George Osterman attended the Shriner's ceremonial in Los Angeles Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Evans and children, Sam Onofre, spent the week-end at the R. B. Waterman home.

Mrs. Myron Tait and Mrs. Bord-en were guests at the Milo Stevens home for the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. F. O. Pierce and family motored to Long Beach Sunday.

FATHERS AND SONS AT GROVE GATHER

GARDEN GROVE, Nov. 17.—The Garden Grove Brotherhood held its annual Father and Son banquet at the Baptist bungalow Friday evening, about eighty-five being present. In the absence of Rev. David B. Looftbourrow, chairman of the entertainment committee, who is ill, P. M. G. Merman, president of the Brotherhood had charge of the program.

Following the supper, Prof. J. A. Cranshaw, superintendent of Santa Ana schools, gave an address, creating much laughter in the introduction of his talk by telling a number of witty stories. The address was one of optimism setting forth the advantages of the boys today in comparison with those of seventy years ago and bringing out the fact that the average boy of today is taking the advantage of his opportunity in educational business and social achievements.

Dr. C. C. Violet was then called upon for a few remarks concerning his boyhood life. He then called on J. M. Woodworth who in turn called upon E. M. Dozier, all speaking of reminiscences of their boyhood.

The audience then listened to Rev. W. Martin of Hollywood, who spoke from "The Times" broadcasting station in Los Angeles, P. M. Reafsnider having donated a radio set to the Brotherhood for the evening.

The warning statement issued by the city official is as follows: "After due investigation of the business and residential alleys, I would say they are in a very unsanitary condition. I would urge everyone to put on a general cleanup of alleys, yards, rubbish boxes, firewood and other containers which make a harboring place for rats and other pests. This is done to eliminate possible danger of an epidemic of plague which is caused by these rodents."

Revision of Construction Laws Urged

NEWPORT BEACH, Nov. 17.—A report will be filed today with the city trustees by the Newport Beach Planning commission, asking that the present city ordinance on zoning the industrial area of the city be amended to limit the drilling of oil in a prescribed district.

The commission will recommend that drilling for oil be confined in the manufacturing zone to the "second east of Central avenue as far as 15th street and the entire section of 39th street, including the ocean front."

This will mean that drilling for oil may be done on a portion of the ocean front now uninhabited but within the city limits, if the recommendations of the commission are adopted by the trustees.

It is believed by some that drilling on lots facing the beach will not imperil sanitary beach bathing. Others state, however, that permitting oil near the beach will hurt it and that at the present values the city's frontage on 39th street to the city limits is easily worth $500,000.

"We do not wish to see the beaches destroyed," said one member of the commission today, "but we do want to bring in industries and feel that manufacturing firms should be permitted to operate in the established zone district."

At present seven oil companies are drilling in the West Newport field. At present the nearest well is more than three blocks from the beach. Just what action the trustees will take is not known. The trustees have the power to reject or accept the report of the planning commission.

AUTOISTS ARE OBEYING LAWS, SAYS JUDGE

ANAHEIM, Nov. 17.—A more strict compliance with the traffic and motor vehicle laws of this city has been noted and commented upon by Justice Charles Kuehl, who also presides here as police judge.

The first two weeks of November were productive of fines from traffic violators totaling $710 and Judge Kuehl said that 95 per cent of the infractions were committed by people from outside the city.

The most common offense is speeding at intersections and traffic officers and motorcycle officers are bearing down hard on this particular violation.

A marked decline in accidents throughout the entire county has been noted by hospitals, especially in this end of the county. While it is true that traffic is much lighter at this time of the year than in the summer months and officers are inclined to think that motorists are exercising more caution than ordinarily.

TRUSTEES TO HEAR 'KICKS' ON PAVEMENT

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Nov. 17.—One of the liveliest sessions in the history of the local board of trustees promises to be held here tonight, when protests on the paving of Walnut avenue will be heard.

Recent action by the board of trustees here to pave Orange avenue, resulted in the attempted formation of a Taxpayers Protective association, by a number of property owners who do not want the street paved. It is understood that they have been quietly at work during the past few days with a view of preventing the improvement.

The leaders of the group state that they object to the letting of the street paving in small contracts and demand that the board of trustees let the contract in one strip for the entire length of the street. On the other hand the city trustees point out that it is to prevent a recurrence of the inconveniences experienced when Ocean avenue was torn up for its entire length for nearly six months that they have decided to let the paving in smaller contracts.

The objectors have declared that cutting of the street into small sections will increase the cost of the paving and discourage competitive bidding. The nine blocks to be paved on Orange avenue drew eight bids for the work at the last meeting of the board of trustees. The bids were from various Southern California contractors and resulted in a low bid of 19 3/4 cents per square foot for the grading and paving work.

According to a statement issued here today from the office of the City Attorney, the present proceedings on Orange avenue cannot be stopped without a delay of from six to eight months. The only thing, it was said, that can be done by the taxpayers is to take over the paving contract at the figure named by the low bidder.

Several other matters are also scheduled to come before the trustees here tonight, including the lighting system projects for Fourteenth street and Huntington avenue.

It is expected that a large attendance of citizens will be at the meeting to represent both factions. A large group of the local business men have declared themselves to be behind the trustees on the paving program.

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Nov. 17.—F. E. The evening was one of the weekly entertainment features of the local Scouts. Patrol No. 1 was in charge of the meeting. Paul Walters, acting as chairman for the evening, secured the speaker, Miss Hortense Strang, and Miss Katherine Bray, contributed to the program with several clever dancing numbers.

The meeting was attended 100 per cent by the Scouts, according to Scoutmaster C. E. Morris. Various patrols of the Scout troops have charge of the weekly meetings.

Troop 3 was organized at the local Scout cabin recently with 14 charter members. Troops 1 and 2 are full and it is expected that Troop 3 will be filled soon.

The Junior Scout troop is also growing rapidly and the leaders from the younger troop will be promoted into the senior troops.

Sixteen local Scouts headed by Scoutmaster Morris will attend a meeting at Lake Hodges as the guests of the Escondido Scouts next Saturday. The invitation is general to the Scouts and it is expected that a number of Scouts from here will visit the Escondido troop camp during the next few weeks. Morris will be in charge of all local Scouts to make the trip.

WOMAN'S CLUB AT H. B. PLANS NEW BUILDING

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Nov. 17.—A new clubhouse, and the start of four new classes, in the sectional division of the local Women's club, are among the many plans for the immediate future for the organization, according to an announcement made here today by the heads of two committees of the club.

Mrs. H. T. Dunning, recently appointed head of the building committee, reported that steps are being taken by the women to secure money for a new clubhouse. A building fund has been started and considerable money has been set aside for the purpose. The decision to build a new clubhouse was reached by the women here some time ago after having been under discussion for several months. At the last meeting of the organization it was decided that the present clubhouse is not large enough to care for the club. It is expected that a building campaign will be staged in the near future by the women to finance their new building.

Four new classes are to be started soon by the women, it was announced by Mrs. T. B. Talbert, chairman of the sectional committee. Two of the classes are to be started within a few days while the other two will be started immediately after the Christmas holidays. A total of seven sections will be functioning in the local Woman's club during the first year of sectional work, it was pointed out.

A special meeting of all women interested in the formation of a spring garden class will meet Wednesday morning, November 19, at the home of Mrs. J. E. McDonald, chairman of the garden committee. Mrs. J. E. Paul, chairman of the garden committee of the Santa Ana club will speak to the local club women on that subject. A regular meeting place and time will be set by the women when discussion of their various vegetable and flower gardens may be discussed. It is expected that more than 25 women will enter the garden class.

A class in American Citizenship will also be started at once, it was announced by Mrs. Mae Jackson, chairman. The committee will meet every two weeks starting Friday, November 21, at the home of the class chairman.

Two other sections, to be started immediately after the Christmas holidays, are a community chorus section which will be in charge of Miss Ruth Harlow, music teacher at the high school, and a literature section. Plans for the literature class have not yet been completed, according to Mrs. T. B. Talbert, chairman of the sectional committee of the Woman's club.

Seventeen women have already signed for the community chorus class and 12 have signed for the literature class.

Of the three classes now functioning in the club, the art class in charge of Miss Martha Trafford of the local high school, is the largest. More than 35 members are registered. More than 20 women attend the sessions of the swimming class, according to Mrs. J. V. Bennie, chairman of the class.

The psychology class instructed by Prof. E. M. Nealley, of the Santa Ana Junior College, is progressing rapidly, according to Mrs. Mabel Jones, chairman, who reported that 24 members are now enrolled in the class.

Oil Company MAY APPEAL DRILLING CASE

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Nov. 17.—Denial of a rehearing in the district court of appeals, the Pacific Palisades company may carry their suit against the city of Huntington Beach to the supreme court, it was announced today by L. W. Blodgett, city attorney here, who was notified of the denial of the rehearing.

A recent decision was handed down by the district court of appeals in favor of the city of Huntington Beach which held the city ordinance establishing an oil restriction district to be valid. The court of appeals sustained the decision given by Judge Z. B. West of the superior court in Santa Ana.

In their suit the Pacific Palisades company charged that the city of Huntington Beach passed that ordinance for personal spite, and that the city did not have the right to prevent people drilling for oil on private property. The court upheld the arguments of City Attorney Blodgett that the ordinance was one of the police powers of the city and that the erection of oil wells in the restricted district would prove a menace to the safety of the citizens living there.

Now that their appeal for a rehearing has been denied by the district court of appeals there is but one other thing for the Pacific Palisades company to do if they wish to carry the case further and that is to take it to the supreme court, it was declared here today by Blodgett.

NEW FOREIGN OUTLOOK NOW IS INDICATED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—A new era in American foreign policy was indicated today when plans of the new regime that has come to control the senate were made known.

The so called "new guard" behind Senator William E. Borah, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, has a sheaf of proposals dealing with old and current international problems, to submit.

The following may be set down with some authority as Borah's position, his plans and his views on the important international problems to be brought up.

Russian Recognition

A resolution is to be pressed expressing the sense of the senate that in view of recognition granted Russia by England, France, and other nations, the country should grant similar recognition without expressing opinion as to the desirability of the soviet form of government. The Russian investigation began by Borah is now to be continued. If Secretary of State Hughes resigns, as indicated, it would remove from the government the strongest opponent to Russian recognition and open the way for action by the senate.

World court: A test vote may be obtained early in the session on the Pepper compromise resolution providing American participation in the court, under reservations which would safeguard this country from adherence to the league of nations.

Disarmament Conference: Borah has declared himself in favor of a joint world economic disarmament conference to complete the work of the Washington conference and attempt to lay foundations for straightening the international economic tangle.

Treaties: The Lausanne and German treaties are to be disposed of. Indications were there will be strong objections from Senator King, Utah, democrat, to the Lausanne Turkish treaty. The German trade agreement will be ratified without much objection, it is indicated.

Central American Policies: Some steps may be taken to protest the activities of the state department in connection with Honduras, San Dominican, Haitien and other occupations.

DAMAGES CLAIMED FOR RIVAL STAND

An unusual and seemingly distressful form of competition in which the competitors were in the same store and literally rubbed elbows as they rushed forward to meet the approaching customer, was pictured today in Superior Z. B. West's court, where Ahn Yong and Chien Kim, Chinese fruit and vegetable dealers, of Anaheim, asked $10,000 damages against their landlord, Sam Hill. Trial of the action commenced at 10 a. m. with Attorney J. L. Richardson of Riverside representing the Chinese and Attorney Charles D. Swanner, Santa Ana, appearing for Hill.

The Chinese objected to the presence of a fruit and vegetable stand operated by Chaffee's, at Center and Clementine streets, Anaheim, in the same store with that of Yong and Kim. They claimed to hold a lease from Hill giving them exclusive right to the fruit and vegetable business at that location. The rival stand has damaged their business to the extent of $10,000, they alleged. In defense, Hill was expected to contend that the Chaffee business was established in the location a year before Yong and Kim procured their lease, which was assigned to them by two other Chinamen. Yong and Kim knew before they established their own stand, that the Chaffee stock included vegetables and fruit, Hill alleged.

ADMITS SHOOTING OF L. A. OFFICERS

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 17.—Two youths were in jail here today, one charged with robbery and assault with intent to commit murder, and the other facing a variety of accusations.

Charles Hebert, 17, faces trial on a charge of shooting Policeman Clyde Mills and M. B. Swan when they attempted to question him last Thursday night. Both the wounded officers will recover.

Edmond Gordon, 21, was arrested on an asserted confession of Hebert, accusing Gordon of having participated with him in a series of robberies.

Hebert, said to have been but recently released from an eastern reform school, was arrested Saturday night on a robbery charge, and admitted under grilling that he shot the two policemen when, after ordering them to face about and march away, he grew nervous and thought one was reaching for a revolver.

ALASKANS RUSHING TO NEW OIL FIELD

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Nov. 17.—Prospectors were rushing by dog team today to a point 100 miles northwest of here where seapages of paraffin have been reported adjacent to extensive lignite deposits.

Three distinct "dones" of oil structure are said to be grouped in the vicinity of the seepage. Bureau of mines officials are hastening to investigate.

Ranch Employee Held for Theft

Arrested today by the Los Angeles police, R. S. Roberts, ex-employee of the Bixby ranch, and also an ex-convict, according to local authorities, was said to have confessed to the theft of $168 from Herbert Howard, a fellow employee. Roberts is charged with burglary. Howard having sworn to a complaint alleging that Roberts forced his way into a bunkhouse on the ranch, in the Santa Ana canyon, where the theft occurred. The offense was alleged to have been committed November 12.

District Attorney A. P. Nelson stated today that Roberts has a prison record, exact details of which are not yet known to the authorities here.

COMPTON ENGINEER SCORES PROMOTERS

COMPTON, Nov. 17.—Real estate "bootleggers" who avoid complying with city specifications in the construction and location of the streets by selling their subdivisions on the "metes and bounds" plan, were bitterly scored before the Board of Trustees this week by City Engineer Edward W. Lynch.

One such case came before the board in which the innocent purchasers were forced to spend several thousand dollars in straightening the crooked streets and in bringing their property up to city specifications.

But for the firmness of the late Mayor Walter L. Peck the subdividers might have intimidated the board into accepting the map. Mr. Lynch stated. In that case the lots might all have been 1/4 and the cost of cleaning up the mess would have been much greater.

As it was, the subdividers failed and the balance of the tract went into new hands and was immediately plotted according to city requirements.

STRIKE AVERTED ON ALASKA LINE

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Nov. 17.—Strike of big five railroad brotherhood members on the Alaskan government railroad has been averted by promises of officials of the road to take up the wage question with Secretary of Interior Work at Washington, it was learned today.

Charles Balshizer, union representative, is on his way to Washington to present the union's case. Local union representatives charge that the railroad management has ignored orders from Washington to institute a wage scale equal to that paid "in the states".

HANFORD YOUTH

HANFORD, Calif., Nov. 17.—Merle Barnes, 17, of Armona, is in a local hospital in a critical condition suffering from many knife wounds and J. E. Wolfe, 47, is held pending the outcome of the youth's injuries.

BARKING DOG TO GO SHY OF BONES

BLOOMFIELD, N. J., Nov. 15.—"We can't sleep at night with the barking of that dog."

"My nerves are so far gone I can't drive a nail straight, and my wife is at a sanitarium because of the barking."

"The health of the neighborhood is being ruined by the awful barking."

Such were the statements of residents of Olive street, Bloomfield, to Police Judge Rawson when they appeared before him in a delegation to demand that P. H. Loftus, a neighbor, be compelled to do something to keep his dog from barking at night. Things looked bad, indeed, for Loftus and the dog, when a neutral neighbor, who happened in the courtroom, asked to be heard. The judge was delighted to hear him, after vainly trying to discover a recipe for barkless dogs.

"Why, I can solve the whole thing for you," smiled the spokesman, glancing from the court to the complainants and defendant. "The dog barks for bones, and he barks more than usual because these people who are complaining are the ones who are feeding him the bones—chicken bones—I've seen them."

Loftus shook his head.

"Yes," he said "they have fed the dog chicken bones."

"The court grinned."

"Case dismissed," he said, rapping his gavel and calling the next case.

Now everyone is happy but the dog. He won't get any more chicken bones and, through the diet, is expected to quit barking.

URGES ACTION TO CONTROL RIOTING

Rioting by high school students must be curbed. If co-operative action by the faculty and the parents of the rowdy youths is not successful drastic action will be taken.

An ultimatum to this effect was given today by Judge William French of Fullerton when he had before him in a quasi-official capacity six Santa Ana lads who were arrested in that city last Friday for riotous conduct. The youths were charged with inflicting window damage, smashing windows, and so on, and with hitting pedestrians and motorists, including a number of women, with over-ripe tomatoes.

These happenings occurred Friday night as a manifestation of the feeling which marks the annual "grudge" game between the rival high school football teams of Santa Ana and Fullerton. The lads were nabbed and held in the city jail overnight.

After giving the accused lads a scathing lecture and warning them French said he was going to take up the matter with the faculty of the Fullerton Union High school and expressed the hope that the faculty and the parents of the Santa Ana youths concerned would take similar action.

vice, with a minimum of effort and expense. We are all most grateful for its appearance and assure a full measure of support.

Kiwanian Pledge Support
Kiwanian support also is pledged by President R. R. Miller, as follows:

"Business and professional men of this community have realized for some time that Santa Ana is no longer a village. County, city, and educational executives have made every effort to improve their systems to the accepted city standards. The business man has appreciated the necessity of doing business in the most modern manner. One task up to the present time has been carried on with a very small degree of efficiency, both in the matter of overhead expense and the saving of time. It has been the policy of our different philanthropic organizations to finance their needs individually and at different periods of the year. Each call has necessitated considerable time on the part of the citizens of our community and a goodly amount of the money for 'drive' expenses. The Community Chest movement will be to Santa Ana a great benefit. It not only will save time but the money subscribed for these different organizations can be used in the carrying on of the actual work itself rather than in the obtaining of funds. Santa Ana is a city and the Community Chest movement stands for progress and efficiency in our community."

H. B. Van Dine, king of the Lions, has written an appropriate appeal for support of the chest, and he calls attention to the fact that by using the first letter in each of the following paragraphs, the name of his organization will be spelled. "Here's what we stand for," he says: "LIBERTY is that for which our fathers and we fought, what we all want, have, and must continue to keep. Community Chest helps us to maintain our liberty. 'INTELLIGENCE is something everyone must use to be a good and useful citizen. Correct and careful thinking leads us in the right paths. Think Community Chest."

"OUR City is beautiful, most prosperous and should be up-to-date. Without Community Chest it is behind the times."

"NATIONS rise and fall. We hope that ours will stand forever. It is up to us to see that it does. Community Chest is a step in the right direction. 'SAFETY first and last. Community Chest was unanimously endorsed by the Lion's Club of Santa Ana. We think it is the only proper way to handle these drives."

Efficiency—economy—co-operation—the three ideals and business principles toward which every one is striving, are the outstanding features of the Santa Ana Community Chest organized a short time ago. According to a statement issued by William H. Spurgeon, Jr., president of the organization, the Community Chest idea is efficient because it saves the time of busy men who make the solicitations on all campaigns for funds. The giver lumps all his gifts in one, thus saving the possible annoyance on many interviews and attendant loss of time. It also gives further assurance of efficiency in all of the participating agencies, because of the close scrutiny of the budget committee and particular interest in any agency.

Economical Movement
It is also pointed out by President Spurgeon that the move is economical for the reason that it saves expense in raising money. This is particularly true this year because no professional campaign director will be employed, thus reducing overhead to a minimum. In this way all money raised except a small amount for keeping the Chest's accounts, will actually be spent in relief and social welfare work by the participating agencies.

A greater spirit of co-operation, the statement adds, is being developed, first, because all the welfare agencies are uniting in one big effort to finance their work, and secondly, because each subscriber can feel that his gift, whether a ten-dollar bill or a $1000 check, will go toward the upbuilding of a great co-operative humanitarian work for the balanced development of the city.

Here are the six leading social welfare agencies which are asking the people of Santa Ana to support the Community Chest: The Salvation Army, with its work among the poor in reclaiming lost manhood and womanhood; the Y. M. C. A., with its program of "Spirit, Mind and Body" development among young men and boys; the Y. W. C. A., with similar activities among young women; the American Red Cross, whose record for service is too well known to require explanation; the Veterans' Welfare Association, with its necessary work of caring for needy ex-soldiers, many of them broken in mind and body or now beginning to feel the effects of their experiences on the battlefields in France; the Boy Scouts of America, with its program of "character development and citizenship training for boys."

Name Sub-Committee
In addition to the work to be done by the directors of the Chest and the various teams under direction of Campaign Manager Roland E. Dye, a sub-committee of prominent business men has been appointed to assist the directors and the teams in reaching the goal of the campaign. This committee, headed by A. N. Zerman, includes the following: J. P. Baumgartner, O. H. Barr, W. A. Taylor, S. H. Finley, R. S. Chandler, Harry W. Lewis, Ralph Mosher, C. H. Chapman, Sam under the direction of Miss Hazel Bemis. Its work is entirely through the schools. Through the Junior Red Cross, the spirit of the Red Cross is taken into the hearts of children.

Aids Mexican Schools.
Of the $275 budgeted to the Junior Red Cross, $75 will go to the national work of this organization.

The remainder is to be used in Santa Ana. Some of the money will be used to assist Americanization work at the Mexican schools, some of it will go to spreading good cheer among needy folk at Christmas time, some of it will go into carrying contributions to needy children in foreign lands, some of it to hospital care. The theory of the Junior organization is to get things done by the children; the money is merely an aid in carrying out the idea. The amount asked for by the Red Cross is a little less than was raised by the Red Cross drive in Santa Ana last year, but strikes an average of the past two years.

CHEST PLAN IS NO LONGER EXPERIMENT

BY J. P. BAUMGARTNER,

Publisher, Santa Ana Register
The Community Chest plan of raising money for public welfare work is no longer an experiment. With rare exceptions—none at all so far as I personally know—the plan has been a success and entirely satisfactorily wherever it has been efficiently put into operation.

It is economical in many ways. For instance, here in Santa Ana we plan to raise a total of $30,000 for the year, providing for six or organization units of welfare work. This we will do in one drive instead of in six drives—a big saving of the time of busy men. And overhead, collection and administration expenses will be proportionately reduced.

Through careful budgeting, cordial co-operation and complete coordination $30,000, handled on the Community Chest plan, can be made to do the duty of $40,000 handled separately and independently by six different organizations.

Another advantage of the plan is its equity, both with respect to the participating organizations and the contributing individuals. The fund is secured from a larger number of contributors, thus diffusing the burden, and is apportioned after careful and impartial consideration of the element of just proportion and the elimination of all duplication and overlapping.

And finally to such extent as any of us may be in doubt as to the efficacy of the plan, we may feel confident in being guided by the experience of other communities who have tried the plan and found it thoroughly practical.

J. P. BAUMGARTNER.
Hurwitz, Neil Beisel, W. L. Deimling, C. M. Rowland, William H. Spurgeon, Walter Tedford, Charles Spicer, L. G. Swales, F. P. Nickey, M. D. Clark, E. V. S. Pomeroy, F. W. Wiesseman, R. A. Emison and R. E. Brown.

Confidence that the drive will go over the top was expressed today by Campaign Manager Roland E. Dye, who added, however, that the undertaking is going to be a "real big job." But if every worker is on deck until the fight is through and the people will co-operate in the good old Santa Ana way of doing things, we will have no difficulty in reaching the $30,000 mark.

The significance of the common fund lies in the fact that the community voluntarily assumed the burden of charity and social welfare work, Dye explained. Fuel, shelter, clothes, hospital care, education—these are a few of the necessities envisaged by the agencies forming the Community Chest—hence the quota set for the drive is the maintenance of the various departments for the next 12 months.

Seventeen Teams, Four Divisions
In all there will be 17 teams, divided into four divisions. Teams 1 to 5 will be in W. V. Whitson's division, designated as Chest Builders. Teams 6 to 10 will comprise a division commanded by John Estes, to be known as Chest Fillers. Teams 11 to 15 will be in W. D. R. E. division, designated as Chest Developers. Chest Protectors is the name given to teams 16 and 17, the former being composed of American Legion men, and the latter by members of the Junior chamber of commerce.

Following are the officers and directors of the Santa Ana Community Chest: William H. Spurgeon, president; Terry E. Stephenson, vice-president; Roland E. Dye, secretary, also serving as campaign manager; Alexander Brownbridge, treasurer; F. C. Blauer, H. W. Lewis, Miss Mabel McFadden, E. T. McFadden and Charles D. Swanner.

E. T. McFadden heads the permanent organization committee, which includes Charles D. Swanner and Roland E. Dye. Harry H. Lewis is the chairman of the budget committee. Other members are W. B. Williams and A. N. Zerman. R. D. Cranshaw is chairman of the auditing committee, which includes Cotton Mather and Harry L. Hanson. Outlining the work of the organization preparatory to the drive, Campaign Manager Dye paid tribute to the following women who have volunteered their services in different capacities, thus reducing the cost of clerical help and other incidentals: Mrs. O. K. Johnson, Mrs. Jack Hayden, Mrs. John Wilcox, Mrs. A. V. Napier, Mrs. R. S. Briggs, Mrs. E. N. Nowotny, Mrs. J. M. Lousbury, Mrs. Bernice Echols, Mrs. Beulah Deaver, Mrs. Margy Graves, Mrs. Charles Mitchell, Mrs. W. Cox, Mrs. H. Reeves, Mrs. R. A. Plant, and Miss Lapum (high school typing class).

Y. M. C. A. AIDS IN BUILDING OF CHARACTER

By R. C. SMEDLEY

The business of the Y. M. C. A. is character construction. Its familiar motto, "Spirit, Mind, Body," indicates the line of its work. Recognizing frankly man's needs of the Divine element in his life, the possibility of training his mind to the point of highest usefulness, and the necessity of a normal, wholesome physical development, the Y. M. C. A. workers have built up a program calculated to produce the kind of manly character and Christian citizenship that the world needs.

The Santa Ana Y. M. C. A. has worked for years on this line, working without equipment, and producing results that are felt daily in the affairs of the city.

Has Splendid New Building
Today, the Santa Ana Y. M. C. A. is housed in its splendid new building, the gift of the public spirited people of this community, and it is doing a greater and more intensive work than ever before, but a work that still operates on the same program of "spirit, mind body."

The public generally thinks of the Y. M. C. A. in terms of its more spectacular activities. The gymnasium classes, the athletic teams, the swimming pool, and such features, make a noise and are evident to all. Sometimes people get the idea that the Y. M. C. A. is principally a club for athletic work. Even if that were so, the Association would be a most valuable part of Santa Ana's community life, for there are people, both children and adults, in great numbers, who need corrective work and health building exercise. Many cases of physical deficiency are being treated regularly in the gymnasium under the leadership of the physical director. Curved spines, weak lungs, stunted growths, stooped shoulders and many other common physical defects of childhood are being corrected, while torpid livers, enlarged abdomens, and all sorts of physical weakness of adults are receiving careful attention.

As a system of "health insurance," the Y. M. C. A. holds a unique place. But while these more obvious activities are being carried on in a public way, the quieter, more confidential work that is being done for meeting the personal needs of the people is even more important and effective. Much of this work is of such a personal nature that it cannot be advertised.

The young man, drifting away from home, starting on the way that leads to ruin, finds friends and wholesome influences in the Y. M. C. A. that turn him right again. The lad who is about to drop out of school to go to work, because he needs the money or because he is tired of school restraints, finds a new inspiration and new interest in getting an education. The victim of bad habits learns his danger and is taught how to control himself.

Steady influences, wholesome atmosphere, friendly counsel, all contribute to right character growth, strengthening of the moral fiber, and building up resistance against temptation.

There was a young lad who had run away from his eastern home, and who drifted into the Y when he was "broke" and hungry. A friendly talk broke down his guard, and led to correspondence that restored him to his anxious mother.

Straightens Up Youths
There was a young man who had got loose from everything and started out on the tramp, who got a job washing windows at a Y building, and landed on his feet again. And there was the chap who had started out with a tough gang, who landed in jail after an unsuccessful raid on a store, and whose probation, under the care of a Y secretary, gave him a chance to learn there was more fun to be had in the gymnasium than with a bunch of young brigands, with the result that he went to work to earn a living so that he could honorably mix with the boys at the Y.

Incidents like that can be multiplied without end in any Y. M. C. A. man's experience. But the great work that the Y does for the boys is in helping them to keep right, rather than in saving them after they have gone wrong. Hundreds of boys today in this community are following a plan of life in the Church-Y groups which is building better citizens for the future. These groups are tied up, first of all, to the church and the Sunday school, and the boy's life of fun and study is centered toward the church and the school by the Y. M. C. A. Character construction is the plan of the Y. M. C. A. for safeguarding the future.

The Santa Ana Y. M. C. A. reaches out over all the south part of Orange county with its activities. Its Pioneer groups, its Comrades and Hi-W organizations, its outreach through physical culture, life saving, swimming instruction, educational and social influences, cannot be safely estimated as to their ultimate effects.

Demonstrates Usefulness
In six months use of the new building, it has demonstrated its place in the life of the community. With more experience and better understanding on the part of the community as to its uses, it will become an increasing power for good.

The Y. M. C. A. could be made to pay its own way, by making the charges for its service high enough to cover all the costs. In that case, it would be most of those who need it most. To make it available to all who need it, the dues are fixed at a low figure. Men who can afford to pay the full cost are permitted to do so, but for the man or boy who is not financially situated to pay the higher fee, other provisions are made, so that no one need be excluded. Thus, to meet the cost of the work done maintaining and building up the kind of character which Santa Ana needs in its citizens, in assisting such institutions as the Y. M. C. A., the Salvation Army, the Soldiers Welfare, the Red Cross, the Y. W. C. A., the Boy Scouts, and the Day Nursery.

We are certainly doing nothing else but this kind of work. I feel sure that the citizens of Santa Ana will not hesitate to subscribe liberally for this annual budget, and it is my honest opinion that we will not require a week in which to raise the fund.

The Santa Ana Board of Realtors went on record several months ago as being heartily in favor of the Community Chest plan, and will support the movement to the last man.

M. AND M. ASSN. ENDORSES CHEST

By P. S. LUCAS

Secretary of Merchants and Manufacturers Association
"Six organizations of Santa Ana represented in the Community Chest Plan all have a vital interest in the community welfare of Santa Ana."

In past years we have been known to have drive after drive for contributions to various causes, resulting in a considerable duplication of effort, time and money of our people.

I do not believe the Community Chest will absolutely end all drives, for should other worthy organizations desire to solicit funds in Santa Ana their credentials, qualifications and needs could be investigated by the Chest and by either recommended or disapproved.

I do think, however, that the possibility of unscrupulous appeals in the future will be largely eliminated by the work of the Chest, which should act as a clearing house for all regular welfare work in Santa Ana.

As business manager of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association, I am in a position to know that time and again there does come up for consideration many solicitations for charity that are unworthy and it will be a fine thing to have a Community Chest as a governor of this sort of thing from which point of view it is well worth the support of the community."

P. S. LUCAS.

POPE PUTS D. K. ON POLISH PACT

ROME, Nov. 15.—Achilles Ratti, as Pope Pius XI, has approved the work of Achilles Ratti, apostolic nuncio to Poland. This is the first time that the Polish republic has made a treaty with the Holy See and it gives the Sovereign Pontiff the opportunity of endorsing the relations he advocates while he represented Benedict XV in the Polish capital.

M. Grabsky, brother of the Polish foreign minister, came to Rome to draw up the final draft of the concordat between the Vatican and Poland. Conferences have been held between Cardinal Gasparri and M. Grabsky in which many of the subjects discussed had already been settled by Monsignor Ratti, an apostolic nuncio. Arrival at full agreement was therefore easy for there was almost identity of views between what the Polish government wanted and what the Vatican proposed.

The Pope, ever since his short assignment in the diplomatic service in Poland, has always retained the tenderest feelings for the Polish people. It is learned in Vatican circles that he regarded with unusual interest the progress of the negotiations and looked forward to the signing of the concordat with an uncertain pleasure as it grows the work he performed in Northeastern Europe with success.

The problems during his Polish mission were complicated. Besides having the remnants of three civil administrations, such as the German, Austrian and Russian, he was confronted with the intricate demands of the three rites—Catholic, Greek and Orthodox. He kept on equally friendly terms with all and besides won the admiration of the then newly-formed Polish republic for his tact and skill.

When he was elected Titular Archbishop of Naupacte, he was to be consecrated in the Cathedral at Rome.

ALTHOUGH BLIND BUILDS OWN HOME

DENVER, Colo., Nov. 15.—A dream, born when he was blinded in a mine explosion 15 years ago, has just been realized by A. R. Brandt, of this city.

In an attractive residential section stands a beautiful new double bungalow, constructed almost entirely by Brandt, after years of toil, unaided by the state pension for the blind to which he was entitled. Now for retirement from the irksome duties in a broom factory where he worked and saved, finally acquiring the money to purchase materials for his home! From excavating his basement to shingling the roof Brandt toiled alone, except for an errand boy, and occasionally some tradesmen to accomplish those fine details of work which only an expert can perform.

With the bungalow nearing completion, many thought the blind fellow had picked a partner to share his home in the later years of life. "Not me," was his laughing answer. "I know when I'm well off."

at less, it is necessary for the Y. M. C. A. to call upon the community for financial aid each year. That is the reason for its participation in the Community Chest.

WELFARE ASSN. FOR VETERANS PROVES VALUE

The principal function of the Santa Ana Veterans Welfare Association is to render quick and effective aid to ex-service men of all wars, and their families, said Charles D. Swanner, a local attorney and Legionnaire.

A large number of ex-service men, many of them in reduced circumstances, others in broken health, are flocking to Southern California in search of health or employment. Some of them are accompanied by their families.

A great number of these men, some still suffering from the effects of their terrible experiences on the battlefields in France, Swanner explained, have had an uphill battle since their return from the war, and have been compelled to depend upon relief in some form or another. While some need small amounts to tide them over until they can find employment, others may from time to time be forced to secure medical assistance and hospitalization. Others still, beginning to develop troubles traceable to their war service.

These ex-service men, citizens who offered their lives in defense of the country, have a well founded claim on the community, Swanner added, and part of the money collected for the community chest will be used for their relief. In closing Swanner made it clear that, before assistance is given an ex-service man, his case is thoroughly investigated, and where it is brought out that the party seeking relief has money coming from the government, necessary relief is extended in form of a loan. In this connection he stated further that not a few of the ex-service men prefer to receive assistance under some sort of loan arrangement than to depend upon charity.

BIG IMPORTANCE OF CAMPAIGN SEEN

By A. L. OLIGER

Secretary, Santa Ana Chamber of Commerce

The Community Chest Association is the most important organization that has been launched in Santa Ana for a decade. The value of any political, social or economic organization is determined by the service it renders to the individual and to society as a whole. If it helps forward the growing participation by more and more people in more and more of the good things of life, it is rated as an agent of progress. The Community Chest association will render a social and economic service to this community and with the proper co-operation on the part of all concerned it will increase in efficiency from year to year.

The idea of the Community Chest is based on the principle of "giving the most for the money." It will eliminate waste, it will concentrate our forces for doing good and it will render a practical community service.

The town which extends the most cordial and fairest treatment to the surrounding community; the business organization which has the greatest vision of opportunities and the greatest co-operation among its members, each individual doing his full share, quickly and cheerfully—these are the individuals and towns and organizations that grow and thrive and contribute something to the world's good.

In carrying out its proposed program the Community Chest will not only prove valuable as a social and economic force, but it will create in Santa Ana and Orange county a high degree of "Community Unity."

SEAL BEACH

SEAL BEACH, Nov. 17.—Judge G. H. Morrison paced the floor of his office puzzled by the most vexing problem he has faced in Seal Beach in the administration of his official duties. Complaints have drifted to him for some weeks in regard to a motherless home where three children were finding too much freedom in following devices detrimental to their best development.

The complaints culminated and forced a decision by the judge when a theft was reported to the police Friday with evidence so convincing that a search warrant was issued and the goods found in the possession of the accused.

A longing for the beautiful raiment proved too tempting and a neighbor's clothes line had been robbed. Penalty attached to the misdemeanor is clearly stated in the law, but there is a law also that demands that every human being be given a chance to make good and that a young girl has a right to protection and right influences for her best development. This law the judge found hard to interpret satisfactorily.

After calling to his help three women advisors to whom the youthful transgressors spoke more freely it was decided that the two girls, 13 and 20, be turned over to the juvenile authorities and the youngest, 13, be kept in the home of her married sister and given an opportunity in school in Seal Beach.

Chicago has a society composed exclusively of French women who became the brides of American soldiers during the war.

There are approximately 5,000,000 members of registered trade unions in Great Britain.

Russia is completing a powerful receiving station near Moscow, capable of picking up American stations.

United States receives about 1500 applications for radio patents annually.

VISITORS TIE SCORE DURING LAST QUARTER

BY ALFRED AULT
After putting across two touchdowns in the first quarter the Santa Ana junior college football team playing against the undefeated freshmen eleven from the University of California, Southern Branch, allowed the Los Angeles warriors to slip up from behind and tie the count, 12 to 12, before the final whistle closed the game on the local field here Saturday.

Before a crowd of approximately 500 persons the college teams battled for victory. A converted goal by either squad would have decided the result but both failed in their two trials. Al Claves, elusive junior college quarterback, true to his tricks, scored both the touchdowns for the local squad. In the first few minutes, the Santa Ana received the kick-off and after a few plays exchanged punts with the freshmen. Then from the California 46-yard line the locals began a steady march to the Bears' goal and in eleven plays made the score.

Fitz Recovers Fumble
Fitz, Santa Ana end who was one of the stars of the game, recovered a Southern Branch fumble punt on the seven yard line soon afterward and from there Gardner and Claves bucked it over.

The locals had trouble stopping the plunges of the visitors. Yet they also held a record of three times taking the ball on downs. Once in the third quarter the visitors had first down within four yards of the goal. Scott, center, slipped through to throw the runner for one yard loss. On the next play Thoele, tackle, added two more yards to the distance. A fumble with Fitz on the pignik turned the attack and saved the goal.

The Freshman Bears made both their scores in the last quarter. Gessup, fullback, went over for the first in a line buck from the five yard mark. The second score that tied the game was made by Walton, halfback, in a wide right end swerve.

The lineup:
Santa Ana (12) (12) Freshmen
Armstrong, R. E. T. Taylor
Fink, R. G. L. Right
Scott, R. G. L. Right

Substitutions: Santa Ana—Righter for Fink, Schroll for Best, Hanson for Best, Langley for Gardner, Freshman—Bristol for Taylor, Holzman for Johnson, Quinn for Walton, Kosker for Ray.

Fullerton May Play Toledo Football Team

Fullerton high school's football team may journey back to Toledo, O., to meet the Walte high school eleven of that city in a post-season contest December 6.
According to "Shorty" Smith, Fullerton coach, the Ohio team has offered the Orange county eleven $4000 guarantee for the trip. A return game at Fullerton next season would be a part of the contract.
The Fullerton faculty probably will consider the offer and reach a decision this week, it was understood.

S. A. COLLEGE TEAM DEFEATS VALLEY GIRLS

The Santa Ana junior college girls' basketball team was tied for first place in the Southern California J. C. conference today following its 23 to 13 victory over the El Centro junior college co-ed hoopers in the first league game here Saturday night. The contest was played at the Y. M. C. A. court.

The locals sewed up the match early in the first half and maintained their margin of superiority throughout. The basketball did not often reach the El Centro forwards, the Imperial valley girls having trouble getting the sphere past the center of the court where Miss Addie Settle, local captain, continually turned back their attack.

High point player was Miss Norman Forman, forward, who made 12 of the 23 points for Santa Ana. Miss Dorothy Cartwright, forward, made eight, and Miss May Wheeler, substitute forward, registered the other three.

Santa Ana plays its second league contest Thursday afternoon at Fullerton. The lineup:
Santa Ana (23) Pos (13) El Centro
D. Cartwright (8) F. (10) A. Belford
N. Forman (12) F. (3) M. Lanier
A. Settle (8) C. (3) E. Surface
M. K. Lowrey (6) C. (1) H. Hubard
R. Finley (5) G. (1) M. E. Zell
Substitutions: Santa Ana—May Wheeler (3) for Dorothy Cartwright, Frances Duncan for Mary K. Lowrey, Martha McPeak for Ruth Finley, El Centro—Theresa Paine for Mildred Hubbard, Lucile Bathrick for Helen Berkman.

There were only two undefeated teams in the Orange County Harbor league today—Irvine and the Van Dien-Young company of Santa Ana.

The Beanpickers moved into a dual tie with the Building Materials men yesterday when behind the superb pitching of big "Dutch" Hinrichs they took a 10 to 0 contest from Garden Grove at the latter city.

Hinrichs held the Grove sluggers absolutely at his mercy, allowing only two hits in the nine rounds. He also was accorded splendid support from his teammates. Charlie Blaeholder started on the ridge for the home team and flung brilliantly until the seventh when he blew up and was yanked for Lempeke.

THORP HOLDS LAGUNA MEN TO SOLITARY BLOW

The Van Dien-Young Co. kept pace with Irvine at their Fifth and Sullivan street park here when they defeated Laguna Beach in a thrilling 4 to 1 pitcher's battle. It was nip and tuck all the way until the Champions scored a pair in the ninth.

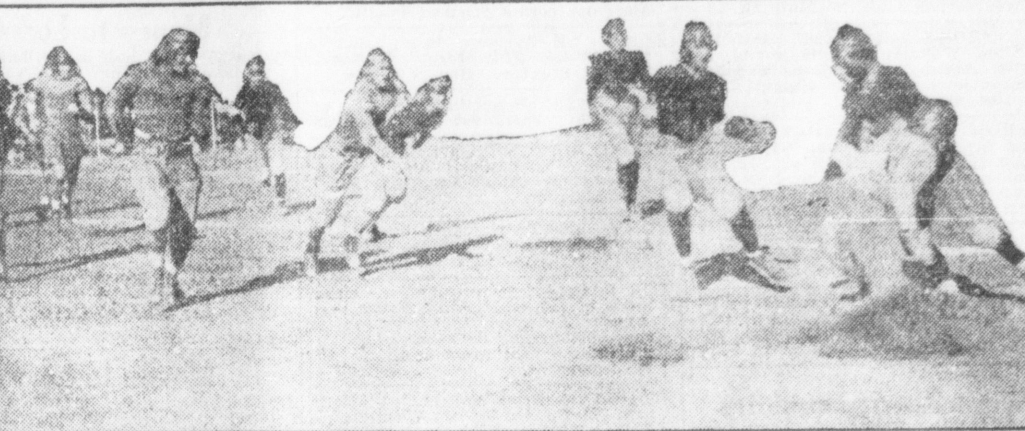

Thorp, veteran Van Dien-Young moundster, let the Cavewallers down with one lone hit. He didn't have much on "Barney" Lo Bard at that for the former Poly pitching ace allowed only two blows. The solitary smash off Thorp was registered in the ninth inning.

MISSION CITY MEN BREAK INTO WIN COLUMN

San Juan Capistrano hopped up a notch in the Harbor league standing by dusting off the Huntington Beach Blue Strreaks at the Mission City yesterday. The score was 5 to 3.

Winter golf is on, and both amateurs and professionals from the northland are packing their grips for the invasion of the Sunny South.

RED-SHIRT "RUNT" GIVES POLY GRIEF

"Buddy" Forster, diminutive Fullerton high school quarterback, gave Santa Ana more worries than a weeder chest has mothballs in the annual grid clash between the rival schools last Saturday. Here's Forster en route for 25 yards around a Poly end in the second quarter. This run placed the ball on the Santa Ana 5 yard line and Fullerton scored in three more plays. Norman Henderson, Register staff photographer, took the picture.

Bowlers Near Half-Way Post

Nearing the half-way post in their struggle for house championship bowling honors the ten teams in the Broadway league will get down to "brass tacks" tonight when the fifth round of their nine-week schedule is opened at the Broadway academy here. The Nickey Hardware and Robertson Electric company teams now are tied for first place. The McFadden Hardware company five is third with The Register quintette fourth.

Averages compiled today disclosed that Frank Nickey, skipper of the Nickey Hardware team, is leading the league with an average of 184 pins a game. Ekfer of the Santa Ana Knights of Columbus squad, has a 186 average but he has participated in fewer games than most of the other bowlers. The averages follow:

There is little doubt now that Notre Dame is the best team of the year and one of the best eleven that ever ran a gridiron. Notre Dame has not been defeated or tied and no team in the country has played the class of teams that Notre Dame has in Army, Princeton, Georgia Tech, Wisconsin and Nebraska.

Notre Dame easily outclasses any team in the east, middle west or south and a comparison with far western football will come when Notre Dame goes to the coast to play Southern California.

which, while it may not be the best team on the coast, will give a fair idea of the competition. Dartmouth, Pennsylvania and Rutgers are tied for the eastern leadership as they have been tied in one game without defeat, Dartmouth, however, deserves top ranking because of heavier opposition. Dartmouth was tied by Yale but there are many who believe that Dartmouth should have won the game.

Chicago jumped into first place in western conference and Michigan moved up to second when Minnesota upset all calculations by trimming Illinois 20 to 7.

Stanford still leads the teams in the Pacific Coast conference with a clear slate against one the game on California's record. Yale, in a most impressive victory over Princeton Saturday, seems to be the winner of the "big three" championship for the second successful year.

Vandals, U. S. C. Clash Saturday

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 17.—With only four days left for practice before their last conference game of this year, the University of Southern California football team will settle down to hard work this afternoon. The Idaho Vandals, one of the strongest teams in the conference and the west this year is expected to arrive on Friday for the game in the coliseum Saturday afternoon.

Piping 'Em Off

The Poly tacklers found little Forster a tough proposition. He was hard enough to reach but when the locals did set him down he just wouldn't stay put.

Two Fullerton ends, Gibson and his successor, Brande, were knocked out of it early in the first half. Gibson suffered a broken collar bone.

Bill Cole, the big U. S. C. tackle, was on the Santa Ana bench helping Coach Covington direct the locals' play.

"Tex" Reister and Bill Young dropped Forster heavily once and "Shorty" Smith, Fullerton coach, dashed to the sidelines waving his arms. He soon cooled down and resumed his chair in front of Red-Shirt's bench.

Rohrer got a lot of good interference from his teammates when he reeled of his 55-yard dash for a touchdown. So did "Red" Meisinger when he sprinted home with that forward pass.

George Decker, Santa Ana captain, was the best defensive player on the field. It was his first game this season as a tackle but he was in there smashing up a lot of plays. There wasn't a sign to speak of made around his side of the line.

Floyd Reister, Poly's other tackle annexed the hat offered by Ray's Torgery to the player of most value to his team. Reister was slow in getting started but in the last half he played a dard of a game. He was down on all the punts before his ends.

Johnny Ward looked good at fullback for the locals. His defensive work especially was outstanding.

Dowling got away some wonderful kicks in the first half but Jack Kirmse held his own during the latter part of the matinee.

It was "curtain" on the football season for Santa Ana. The locals will check in their suits this week and remain idle athletically until after the Christmas holidays.

TUSTIN BEATS K. C. BALL TEAM BY 7-6

Falling one run short in a sensational ninth inning rally when they scored once and had runners on second and third with a single out, Santa Ana council, Knights of Columbus, lost its baseball game to Tustin by a score of 7 to 6 yesterday afternoon.

Andy Kramer, "Casey" shortstop, was the hitting hero of the pastime. He clicked out a single, double and triple in four trips to the dish. The lineup:

QUARTERBACK FORSTER IN HERO ROLE; LOCAL SCORE MADE ON PASS, LONG RUN

"Buddy" Forster is the quarterback on the Fullerton high school football team. The story book writer might refer to him as a "runt" for he is quite slender and not much more than 5 feet tall. But whatever physical prowess nature denied him her bestowal of fleetness of foot, soundness of body and keenness of brain within him made up for it. Over at Fullerton today they still were telling how little "Buddy" almost single-handed beat Santa Ana, 13 to 6, in the annual football game between these two traditional athletic rivals last Saturday afternoon.

Fullerton scored two touchdowns—both in the second quarter. Santa Ana made one—in the third period. Neither of the Fullerton touchdowns were made by Forster personally but he was directly responsible for the first one and his good right foot accounted for the extra point which would have defeated Santa Ana anyway even had not his teammate, Rohrer, trekked 55 yards through the entire local lineup for the touchdown.

Strategy Goes for Naught
Santa Ana waged a valiant defensive fight. Even in defeat the local team looked better in some respects than it had at any time this fall. But in the early part of the game the locals could not stop Forster in the broken field and all the strategy, trickery and deep laid plans of Coach Ed Covington went to naught because Forster would run the ball right back into the most compromising of situations, never giving Covingtons men an opportunity to do other than kick.

Once he had built up his 15-point lead Forster was content to rely on his splendid kicker, Dowling, to keep the ball so far into Poly territory that it would have been suicide to open up.

Poly Scores On Pass
Herb Meisinger, Santa Ana's red-shirted end, accounted for the Poly touchdown. His sensational 50 yard race to the goal followed a pass completed with such apparent ease that Santa Ana seemed unlucky not to get in a position where it would have been safe and sane to have tried more long shots.

Meisinger's score came in the third quarter and was about the only bright spot in the day for local fans. After exchanging punts several times Norton, Poly quarterback, finally carried one in to his own 40 yard line. The Fullerton backs, evidently placed there by Coach "Shorty" Smith to match the strategy of Covington's revamped backfield, played within 10 yards of the line of scrimmage. They had no "safety man."

Over Secondary Defense
On this first play Norton dropped back and flipped a beautiful pass over the Fullerton secondary defense. Meisinger, they say, never yet has dropped a pass through anywhere near him. He didn't Saturday. He caught Norton's toss on the dead run and was still going when three or four red-shirts made desperate but futile dives for him at the goal line. Kirmse's kick for the extra point was going true until big Ed French, Fullerton center, stuck his hand in its path.

Even after this dire threat the Fullerton backs played in just as closely but the locals never attempted another long pass chiefly because they most always were busy kicking out of dangerous positions and running down the tiny but elusive Forster.

Fullerton Threatens
There was much kicking and much running after Forster in the first quarter, for the little Fullerton field general was bringing all of Kirmse's boots back from 15 to 20 yards. Just as the period closed he threw a 20 yard forward pass to Gibson, end, who ran an additional 5 yards to the Santa Ana 15-yard mark before Norton and Dawson stopped him.

Fullerton drove the ball to the 4 yard line on straight football where it was "first and ten." Santa Ana held, however, and took the ball on downs the inch or two from the last white mark.

Kirmse kicked out from behind his goal, the ball going to touch on Santa Ana's 34 yard line. Forster then circled right end to the 5-yard line.

EVENING SALUTATION

One of the solemnities of our life is that we are responsible, not alone for what we purposely do, but also for what we unconsciously do. . . . The shadow you cast when unwatched, when intent on no great errand, but just living your ordinary life, speaking and acting without any thought of what comes of them, is helping or harming others.—M. MAKE IT A SUCCESS

The Community Chest drive must succeed. It is easy to say that a thing must be done. In speaking of the absolute necessity of making the Community Chest drive a success, however, we have in mind the importance of the project in itself, its importance to each of the six organizations included within its activities this year, and its importance to the residents of Santa Ana.

The Community Chest idea has been tried in many cities and has been proven decidedly worth while. It is shown to be economical in time and effort as well as in money.

Its importance to the six organizations that are members of the Community Chest can be pointed out by this question: Suppose the drive fails, how are these organizations going to finance themselves this year?

Having faith in the community, the Red Cross chapter has allowed the period set by the national organization for its annual roll call to go by. Is it fair to the Red Cross now for Santa Ana to fail to provide the Red Cross with its quota?

Other organizations have eliminated their plans for separate drives. Each has faith that Santa Ana will respond to the call.

If the Community Chest drive this year goes over successfully, the Community Chest becomes an established institution here. If it fails, we go back to our old trying, troublesome, time-wasting and effort-wasting and more expensive individual drives.

We are to finish the job this week.

THE HOME OF THE ORANGE

Orange County, home of the orange, is interested in anything concerning the progress of the citrus industry. That is the reason the annual report of the California Fruit Growers Exchange, which is the co-operative marketing agent for the associations that are organized together proved of wide interest here.

Orange county pioneered with citrus fruit, and has seen the orchard areas spring up and spread. Anyone who believes that the citrus industry in this county has developed as far as it can develop do not see the future of the citrus industry in this county as we do. Within the next ten years thousands of acres in the southern end of the county will be set to Valencia oranges—acres that now grow beans or barley. Several hundred acres of young orchard have been set on the Irvine ranch in the past two years. Is there any reason why this acreage should not be increased year by year? And who can tell what will happen in the canyon bottoms and on the foothills of the O'Neill, the Whiting and the Moulton ranch?

What has happened at Lemon Heights may happen elsewhere in Orange county. Nothing stands in the way but lack of water. Men have pioneered in water development, and have changed bare lands into orchards. Is the pioneering all done? Anyone who has seen the pioneering that has been done in one of the canyons on the Whiting ranch in the past year will ask you why the development of water in that canyon cannot be duplicated elsewhere in our foothills.

The citrus crop is a huge item in California's annual income. According to the report of the California Fruit Growers Exchange the value of the oranges delivered to the wholesale trade reached $105,000,000. Shipments for the season handled by the exchange—which takes care of about 73 per cent of the state's total crop—totaled more than 14,000,000 boxes of oranges and grapefruit and more than 4,500,000 boxes of lemons. Expressed in carloads, there were nearly 32,000 cars of oranges and grapefruit and more than 11,500 cars of lemons.

A significant development of the season was the increase in shipments of California citrus fruits to the Orient. Increased steamship space and lower refrigerating rates will enhance this trade, which promises to expand and become profitable to growers.

MOVING COUNTRY'S FREIGHT

A representative of the American Railway Association remarks, with pardonable pride, that railways and shippers are "shooting the freight through." With heavy fall traffic, resulting from crop-moving, there are no traffic jams and few delays. There is every prospect of continued prompt service if business in general speeds up, throwing a greater burden on the railroads.

For this improvement the railroads themselves deserve high praise, but the public comes in for a large part of it. There is at work an effective organization of regional shippers' committees co-operating with the transportation lines. There are stricter rules in force for loading and unloading, and other causes of delay, than there used to be, and shippers are living up to them. Cars, full or empty, are no longer held on sidings indefinitely. That amounts to making a great increase in the number of cars in service. Freight trains are moved faster, too, and there are more cars in a train.

American railroads are getting into their old-time form—with modern additions—and showing the world how to transport freight.

PROGRESS IN VOTING

In spite of heroic efforts made by party workers and disinterested patriots to "get out the vote" on election day, the result shows that scarcely one-half of qualified citizens in the United States voted. The National Civic Federation wants to know why, and is making a national canvass to that end, as a ground-work for more effective efforts hereafter.

The situation is lamentable, but by no means fatal, as matters stand. It represents a big gain for democracy and a better representation than ever before.

Time was when, we might say, only one man in a country voted. That was the king. An absolute monarch elected himself, and his word settled every national issue.

There was a gain when a few powerful nobles made royalty divide up its sovereign power with them. That made perhaps a dozen votes, or a hundred.

Later on, the propertied middle-classes gained the franchise, and elected parliaments or congresses to represent them and curb the king still more. Eventually all free men could vote, in countries interested in freedom. Then all men could vote. And now all women can vote.

During all this political progress, there have always been voters—even among kings—who failed to use their franchise. But the big thing has been the gain in spreading the privileges and responsibilities of government.

Nearly 30,000,000 men and women shared in the last election. That means more than one-fourth of the population, and an average of about one and a half votes per family. Eventually the average family will be still more fully represented. In the meantime, we are doing pretty well.

NO STATE INCOME TAX

Florida, by popular vote, ratifies a constitutional amendment forbidding any state income or inheritance taxes. The federal government may do as it likes, but the state itself will not levy such taxes.

The action is due partly to the unpopularity of the federal income tax and partly to the desire of Florida to attract outside capital. It is a perfectly legitimate decision, acquiesced in not only by leading citizens and newspapers but by the citizens generally, in a ten-to-one vote.

An outside observer may wonder, though, how long Florida will stick to this policy. It is not likely to last forever.

Other states generally regard the income tax, though a nuisance in some ways, as nevertheless one of the fairest forms of taxation yet discovered. There are sound arguments, too, in behalf of the inheritance tax, now used in a large number of states to supplement the income tax.

Presidential Electors

Several incidents occurred during the recent presidential campaign and election, which have a tendency to increase the disfavor with which our system of voting for electors instead of for president direct has been held for some time. It is difficult to get citizens to view any specific incident in any other light than that of its promotion or opposition to their own particular preferences. What would be resented as a great wrong if it worked disadvantage to their party or candidate is accepted with complacency, if not with joy, when it hits an opposing party or candidate. That is not the proper attitude of a true American citizen. Absolute fairness and equality should be his ideal, in elections as well as in other things. A strict attitude of a citizen zealous for the perpetuity of our Democratic institutions should assume. Another incident in point occurred in New York state. The names of La Follette and Wheeler occurred twice on the ballot, but with a different set of electors. Some voters marked both and their ballots were held to be illegal and not counted.

These and other incidents are increasing the sentiment in favor of an amendment to the constitution abolishing the electoral college and providing for a direct vote for president in each state, much as is now done for senator. Election by states is not likely to be discontinued in favor of national popular election, because of the restriction of franchise in some of the states. All the cumbersome machinery of casting the electoral vote and counting it would be simplified, and the delay involved, with its possibilities of complications would be avoided. It would make for simplification of nomination and of ballots and more certainty in voting. The real function of the electoral college has ceased to exist and the college itself might well disappear also.

Forest Replacement

All the proposals regarding fire prevention, however successful, little or nothing for the rebuilding of the forests.

We must, of course, work to save the forests we have. But in this part of the state especially, we must take more active steps to encourage new growth.

Especially, the legislature should take steps toward providing for new growth on so-called private land.

In a forest sense, there is no such thing as private land. All this land is of public service. The wanton destruction of trees that is going on—young trees as well as ripe timber, is a blow at the future prosperity of our region.

On the coast, second growth comes up more quickly. Here in the central part of the state, districts that were denuded many years ago, still show little sign of new growth.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M. D.

HEALTH AND WEALTH

A wealthy business man was consulting a physician in a distant city. After the consultation he asked the physician, "When shall I come again?" The physician said, "When will you be in this city again?" "Just the very day and hour you want me to come," "What about your business?" "I've got only one business in life at present, and that is to get well, and at my best physically. Nothing else really matters."

He was past sixty and had many interests. However, for the preceding couple of years he had been ailing, first with one little sickness or infection, and then another. An accident and a couple of operations, had brought him below par physically, but he knew what he wanted, and intended to get, and that was the ordinary good health he had previously enjoyed.

I sometimes think that in those days of hustle after business and money, that the big asset, good health, is sometimes not considered. It was Emerson, I believe, who said, "Give me good health and a day, and I will make the pomp of emperors ridiculous." And after all, what is worth more to you than that feeling of wanting to get up in the morning to tackle things, that enjoyment of your meals, of recreation, and of sleep. What has life in it that is worth more than to just feel well all the time?

It is hard to understand how men who are considered hard-headed business men have not figured this thing out from the business standpoint. I remember a young chap in the South whose uncle had left him one million dollars. He attended gymnasium classes regularly, played golf during the season, was careful of his diet, and just generally enjoyed good health.

Speaking to me one day, he said, "Do you know why I do these things?" "Oh, just to feel well and up to your job," I said. "Yes, I made up my mind to make another million dollars, and this is the best way to do it. My health is my biggest asset." Think it over.

Co-operate in School Work

When Riverside schools opened some parents breathed a sigh of relief and congratulated themselves that for the next few months they will be free from responsibility regarding their children. That responsibility which has been theirs during the vacation they now propose to shift onto the schools. Any father or mother, however, who takes that view is not meeting the measure of responsibility that properly falls on the parents. The child in school is not going to function properly in his studies, in his sports or in matters of discipline unless there is co-operation between the parents and the teachers, between the home and the school.

That view of the situation is well stated by the following editorial in Collier's Weekly and the Press commends it to the thoughtful consideration of Riverside parents:

"Check yourself up with regard to what you are really doing—or going to do—to co-operate in your children's schooling. 'Do you know just what they are going to study?' 'Do you know their teachers other than by name, if that?' 'How many of those teachers have you ever met, and talked with about your children?' 'How do you know the teachers would consider this a bore or imposition, if you've never tried?' 'How many teachers have you encouraged to talk with you, in case they find your child difficult?' 'If you find fault with the school methods in your community, what have you ever done to improve them? What are you going to do?'"

Worth While Verse

THE TEMPEST

We were crowded in the cabin,
Not a soul would dare to sleep—
It was midnight on the waters,
And a storm was on the deep.

'Tis a fearful thing in winter
To be shattered by the blast,
And hear the rattling trumpet
Thunder, "Cut away the mast!"

So we shuddered there in silence—
For the stoutest held his breath,
While the hungry sea was roaring
And the Breakers talked with Death.

As thus we sat in darkness,
Each one busy in his prayers,
"We are lost!" the captain shouted
As he staggered down the stairs.

But his little daughter whispered,
As she took his icy hand,
"Isn't God upon the ocean
Just the same as on the land?"

Then we kissed the little maiden,
And we spoke in better cheer,
And we anchored safe in harbor
When the morn was shining clear.

IN THE LONG AGO

14 Years Ago Today
From the Register Files

NOVEMBER 17, 1910.

Ruperto Saragoza will not be tried on a charge of attempting to kill Pedro Salcido. The case was dismissed when the district attorney's office announced that Salcido had disappeared.

Santa Ana spends $6,495 a month on its schools according to a report filed by John Beatty, secretary of the local board of education.

Miss Elizabeth Hill was married to Wilfred Lewis. The ceremony was performed at the residence of the bride by the Rev. J. A. Stevenson, pastor of the First Presbyterian church.

A large crowd attended "Arizona," the play that was produced at the Grand Opera house last night.

Local police officers issued a warning to local residents to beware of hoboes. The winter rush of the Knights of the Road, they said, was on. Several complaints have been received recently.

Planet Discovered

They have found a planet—those tireless astronomers. It gives the devoted scientist more pleasure to discover a planet, a comet or some heavenly body hitherto unknown, than it gives some men to discover a gold mine. Up somewhere between Jupiter and Mars there is a small heavenly body belonging to this solar system whose existence has been hidden from mortal ken, until recently it was sighted from the observatory at Heidelberg, Germany. It has just been viewed by the Lick Observatory, here in California.

While this discovery is interesting, it is not especially important, inasmuch as it is known that there are about one thousand small planets—baby worlds—floating around the sun. It is interesting to the layman, however, to contemplate the comprehensiveness and the exactitude of astronomical research and knowledge. The heavens are charted as carefully and as completely as is the Atlantic ocean. If a tiny new island were thrown up, in the Atlantic, by some subterranean upheaval, scientists soon would discover it. And so in the heavens, the discovery of a body not set down in the established charts of the skies is noted by astronomers everywhere. With the advancement in the making of instruments and devices for analyzing the constituent elements, the work of the astronomer becomes more marvelous.—Pasadena Star-News.

Ancient China

Lee Yuk-Tin, rich Chinese banker, visits New York and brings for exhibition relics buried 1000 years before King Tut was born. These relics were dug up 18 feet underground near Canton, China, from the grave of an ancient king. They are marvelous artistic creations of carved jade, bronze and delicate porcelain.

China in the next few years will be the center of the world's attention in excavations into the forgotten past. The Chinese claim their authentic history dates back to a high degree of civilization 22,000 years ago. We have much to learn from them—including their system of inheriting debts as well as legacies.

He calleth together his friends and neighbors, saying unto them, Rejoice with me; for I have found my sheep which was lost.—Luke 15:5.

San Blas Indians

Woman rules and man works in supply the staple article of commerce, the coconut, destined to appear on far distant tables or to become soap, an article with which those who garnered the harvest are, alas, too unfamiliar.

A Bare Eistence
Why do these people huddle themselves together on these little sandy islands, almost awash in this tranquil inland sea? Truly it is not a life of comfort, and of privacy there is absolutely none. The high bamboo walls of the large, high-peaked, palm-thatched houses are built so closely together that an average-sized American has difficulty squeezing between them. Food, fuel, building material and water must be brought from the mainland. Is it for protection that this "lake-dweller" method of existence was adopted?

On the northern coast of Panama to the eastward from the Atlantic entrance to the Panama Canal is a series of small islands, the Archipelago de las Mulatas, situated in a sort of an inland sea, the Gulf of San Blas, created by a long coral reef that sometimes emerges from its sapphire bed as little surf-rimmed bars of white sand, decorated with feather duster and coconut palms. This is the San Blas group of islands, inhabited by a tribe of some thirty thousand persons, of whom twenty thousand live in Panamanian territory and the remainder in Colombia. An independent, self-sufficient people these, not unlike the native described by Kipling as:

"The 'eathen in his blindness bows down to wood and stone,
'E don't obey no orders unless they is his own."

They recognize the sovereignty of nobody but themselves, each chief being supreme on his own tight little island. Tradition has it that one of these once visited Panama, the capital, and was given a ride in the presidential carriage, to the horror of some of the Panamanian bluebloods, but apparently this courtesy was accepted as merely the proper exchange of amenities between rulers of equal rank. It is true that the Panamanian government has established a station on the most westerly island, Porvenir, which, perhaps prophetically, means "the future," and has a substation at Playon Chico (little-beach) to the eastward, but aside from these and the twin islands of Nargana and Corazon de Jesus, where there are small missions, it is doubtful if there is a single inhabited island in the group on which a white man or woman has ever been permitted to spend the night.

Retain Customs and Language
Living thus within a few hours of the great international waterway of the western hemisphere, these people lead a solitary, self-contained existence, their tribal customs and their verberal language remaining virtually unchanged since the Spaniards first visited them. A few of the men speak Spanish, some have a few words of English, but when addressed in either of these languages the women coyly shake their heads and smile, and serve the broad disks of gold that serve them as earrings or uncompromisingly wiggle the heavy gold ring suspended from a nose down which runs a narrow stripe of crimson madder, several shades less virulent in color than a civilized lipstick.

The inhabited islands produce little or nothing in the way of vegetation for they are so crowded with the palm-thatched houses where swing the family hammocks (for this is the native haunt of that comfortable bed-substitute which the discovery of the New World gave to humanity, name and all) that scarcely a blade of grass can gain a root. Vegetables come from the little farms on the mainland, turtles, crabs and fish from the sea, while palm-studded islands supply the staple article of commerce, the coconut, destined to appear on far distant tables or to become soap, an article with which those who garnered the harvest are, alas, too unfamiliar. A Bare Eistence

Why do these people huddle themselves together on these little sandy islands, almost awash in this tranquil inland sea? Truly it is not a life of comfort, and of privacy there is absolutely none. The high bamboo walls of the large, high-peaked, palm-thatched houses are built so closely together that an average-sized American has difficulty squeezing between them. Food, fuel, building material and water must be brought from the mainland. Is it for protection that this "lake-dweller" method of existence was adopted?

On the northern coast of Panama to the eastward from the Atlantic entrance to the Panama Canal is a series of small islands, the Archipelago de las Mulatas, situated in a sort of an inland sea, the Gulf of San Blas, created by a long coral reef that sometimes emerges from its sapphire bed as little surf-rimmed bars of white sand, decorated with feather duster and coconut palms. This is the San Blas group of islands, inhabited by a tribe of some thirty thousand persons, of whom twenty thousand live in Panamanian territory and the remainder in Colombia. An independent, self-sufficient people these, not unlike the native described by Kipling as:

"The 'eathen in his blindness bows down to wood and stone,
'E don't obey no orders unless they is his own."

They recognize the sovereignty of nobody but themselves, each chief being supreme on his own tight little island. Tradition has it that one of these once visited Panama, the capital, and was given a ride in the presidential carriage, to the horror of some of the Panamanian bluebloods, but apparently this courtesy was accepted as merely the proper exchange of amenities between rulers of equal rank. It is true that the Panamanian government has established a station on the most westerly island, Porvenir, which, perhaps prophetically, means "the future," and has a substation at Playon Chico (little-beach) to the eastward, but aside from these and the twin islands of Nargana and Corazon de Jesus, where there are small missions, it is doubtful if there is a single inhabited island in the group on which a white man or woman has ever been permitted to spend the night.

Retain Customs and Language
Living thus within a few hours of the great international waterway of the western hemisphere, these people lead a solitary, self-contained existence, their tribal customs and their verberal language remaining virtually unchanged since the Spaniards first visited them. A few of the men speak Spanish, some have a few words of English, but when addressed in either of these languages the women coyly shake their heads and smile, and serve the broad disks of gold that serve them as earrings or uncompromisingly wiggle the heavy gold ring suspended from a nose down which runs a narrow stripe of crimson madder, several shades less virulent in color than a civilized lipstick.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

by Olive Roberts Barton

NO. 1—A LETTER FROM THE FAIRY QUEEN

The Twins found a letter from the Fairy Queen one morning under their porridge dishes on the breakfast table. Or rather Nancy found it under hers, for, of course, a letter cannot be under two porridge dishes at once.

The letter said:
"Dear Twins:
"Mother Goose and Daddy Gander asked me to send you word that they have invited the Riddle Lady to Mother Goose Land to spend a few days."

"She's going to stay at Mrs. John's house, or rather, at the House-That-Jack-Built, for it's the same thing. Mrs. John, being Jack and Jill's mother, people call it Mrs. John's, you know."

"Everybody in Mother Goose Land loves the Riddle Lady because they have so much fun when she is there. Every day she asks a riddle and gives a prize to the person who guesses the answer first."

"Mrs. John will serve tea and cakes, or maybe cider and doughnuts, and I am sure everybody would be very glad to have you. Put on the magic shoes you will find hidden behind the umbrella stand, and then wish yourselves up on the roof. Daddy Gander will be waiting for you with his magic dust-pan."

"I hope that you all have a very good time."
"Lovely yours,
"The Fairy Queen."

"Oh, goody!" cried Nancy.
"Hoory!" shouted Nick.
"What's all the fuss about?" asked Cook coming in from the kitchen. "When your Mother's away, I don't see how you can be so happy!"

"Oh, but we're going away, too," said Nick.
"Sh!" whispered Nancy.
"What's that?" cried Cook. "And where are you going, I'd like to know."
"Oh, just out to play," said Nick.
"My sakes!" said Cook. "The way you two do gallivant around outdoors is the queerest I've seen all day sometimes! And always talking about faeries and brownies and things!"

But she went away still talking to herself about never knowing what children were up to nowadays. No sooner had her apron strings disappeared around the corner of the kitchen door than the Twins slipped down from their places and flew out to the hall. And there, just as the note had said, were the tiny shoes tucked behind the umbrella stand. The Twins slipped them on and making a wish found themselves on top of their own roof. But was it their roof? No it couldn't be!—their roof didn't have flowers and trees growing on it and a brook tinkling merrily along between mossy banks. "Ha, ha, ha!" roared a merry voice. "What makes you look so surprised? You'd think you'd never been to Mother Goose Land before!"

There stood fat, dear, old Daddy Gander, his magic dust-mat tucked under his arm. He laid it down and said a charm, and instantly it spread out like a floor. "Jump on," he said. "They are waiting for us on Pippin Hill."
